Tia Juana Suspect Tries Suicide

LUIS AMADOR, SALOON MAN, CUTS WRISTS

Mexican, Accused in Shame Death Case, Attempts to End Life in Prison Cell

IS SAVED BY GUARDS

Two Are Expected to Face Firing Squad, Result of Coroner's Jury Verdict

(By United Press)
SAN DIEGO, Feb. 13.— Luis Amador, proprietor of the Oakland bar, held in the Tia Juana jail with Police Chief Zenaide Llanos as a principal suspect in the Petet family "shame suicides," attempted to end his life last night by slashing his wrists.

The attempt was discovered by guards in time to prevent death. Shooting at sunrise by a Mexican firing squad was the probable penalty faced today by Amador and Llanos.

The pair was held responsible by a coroner's jury for the attack on two American girls at the border resort, which resulted in the "shame suicide" of the family of Thomas Petet.

Summary Justice Expected
Llanos and Amador, together with five others held in connection with Tia Juana's drive against wide-open vice, face formal presentation of the charges against them today in federal court. The "extreme penalty of the law has been demanded," and it was expected that summary "Mexican justice" would compel a speedy sentence.

Tia Juana's mayor, Federico Palacio, has received a message from President Calles, at Mexico City, urging "quick punishment" for those found guilty of "outraging the Petet girls."

The Mexican president also demanded that the Tia Juana mayor close up all vice dens at the resort.

Plutarco Calles, assistant attorney general of the Mexican republic, has been assigned as special prosecutor for the preliminary court trial of Llanos, Amador and their five co-defendants.

Military Law Predicted
Local authorities predicted today that military law would probably be declared in Tia Juana pending a clean-up of conditions at the border. Governor Rodriguez, as the civil and military executive of Baja California, is empowered to place the resort under martial law.

This would make possible a military trial for the accused Mexicans, and insure speedy punishment. A military court could try and convict the men and have them before a firing squad within a few hours.

Amador and Refugio Alvarez, one of the seven defendants, are claiming American citizenship to escape the probable death penalty. They appealed to customs officials at the border, declaring they were born in California.

Governor Rodriguez is said to be contemplating an order closing the international gates at 6 p. m. daily, instead of 9 p. m. to discourage American tourists from excessive drinking and gambling at Tia Juana.

He also is understood to be considering establishment of a commission to regulate conduct of all pleasure resorts along the border, with power to padlock questionable places.

PETEET'S LETTER GIVES DIRECTIONS FOR BURIAL
INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Feb. 13.—The suicide pact of the Thomas M. Petet family at San Diego, a week ago today, was fully premeditated, according to a letter received here by F. W. Pendleton, Petet's banker here. The Petets formerly lived here.

"Have my body next to my wife and the two girls next to mine," Petet wrote.

U. S. MOVIE COMPETITION GREAT WORRY TO EUROPE
(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Motion pictures made in America have become so popular abroad that European producers have appealed to their governments for legislation to limit American films shown in their countries.

C. J. North, commerce department expert, today said that the American movie command up to 90 per cent of the showings in foreign countries. The American motion picture industry realized at least $75,000,000 from foreign business last year.

AIR MAIL PILOT, STUNT FLYER AT SAN FRANCISCO FAIR, PLUNGES TO DEATH

(By United Press)
MONTPELIER, O., Feb. 13.—Art Smith, veteran air mail pilot, was killed in a crash of his eastbound Chicago-Cleveland mail plane, here last night. The plane burst into flames as it crashed. Smith was pinned beneath the craft and was dead when extricated.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Death of Art Smith, veteran air mail pilot, in a crash last night in Ohio, brought a real regret to San Francisco.

The little airman was the "darling of the exposition of 1915." Coming to San Francisco to engage in stunt flying, after the death of Lincoln Beachy, killed early during the fair, Smith was soon a local favorite.

He was a small man in stature but, sitting far out on his airplane, which in these days would be considered a very crude affair, he thrilled thousands every day during the exposition.

Smith was said to be the first man in America to loop the loop. It was a daily feature with him, turning his flimsy craft over dozens of times in the air and putting it through antics which terrified the crowds below on the exposition grounds, many of whom had never seen an airplane before.

He initiated night flying, with fireworks attached to his machine, and on the last night of the fair spelled out a farewell in the sky.

He joined the air mail service soon after its inauguration. He was 32 years old at his death, having started flying when he was 16.

BERGDOELL IS UNDER ARREST IN GERMANY

(By United Press)
BERLIN, Feb. 13.—Grove Cleveland Bergdell, American draft dodger, has been arrested at Mossbach, state of Baden, following his return to Baden after a long absence.

The exact nature of the charges against him is not revealed. Bergdell, whose home was in Philadelphia, created a great sensation when he declined to serve in the American army during the war and by artifice succeeded in making his way to Germany. He took refuge in Eberbach, a hamlet in the state of Baden, but more than a year ago mysteriously disappeared after several attempts had been made to kidnap him. On one of these attempts, Bergdell shot and killed one of his would-be captors.

His kinsmen in Eberbach cooled him after this and Baden, once sympathetic to the man "who would not fight his own flesh and blood," turned against him when reports circulated that his presence in Baden was having a bad effect in America, and might even react against the campaign then being conducted for feeding starving German children.

His relatives expressed the belief he had taken refuge in Switzerland and claimed persistently that they had no word of any kind from him.

Garbutt walked to the execution chamber with a firm step. He did not need any aid and did not ask spiritual consolation before the hanging.

Garbutt Admits Slaying
Just before he mounted the 13 steps, he turned to one of the guards and confessed the slaying, according to the warden's secretary.

"I fired the shot," Garbutt said. "Of course I did not mean to do it." The hanging was witnessed by 35 spectators.

Today's execution was preceded by one of the most vigorous efforts to stay the hangman's noose in California's criminal history.

Less than an hour before the time set for the hanging, the U. S. supreme court in Washington was assembled by Chief Justice Taft and unanimously concurred in a decision not to intervene in the case.

It was the first time in 20 years that the supreme court has acted in a hanging plea so closely before the execution.

Appeal to State Tribunal
At the same time the supreme court was meeting, the California supreme court, in San Francisco, received an application for a writ of habeas corpus, taken before it by Mrs. Roma de Rosa, sister of Anthony B. D. Spagnoli, counsel for Garbutt. Spagnoli was here at the time and entrusted the final plea to his sister.

The petition was based on the claim that the copy of the order for execution transmitted to the penitentiary was not stamped "A True Copy," as the statutes demand. Warden Frank J. Smith delayed the execution 40 minutes until he was advised that the court held the order was perfectly legal and did not need an official action to support it.

Before coming to California, Garbutt served a prison term in the Joliet, Ill., penitentiary.

Kills His Benefactor
The crime for which Garbutt was hanged was the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Lee Hunn, in her Pasadena bungalow, in 1924. She had been in California for some months and had known Garbutt in Illinois. Friends said that she was interested in prison work and had befriended the man, after his release from the Joliet penitentiary.

The night of the slaying, Garbutt was a dinner guest at Mrs. Hunn's residence. After dinner, he accosted her in the kitchen, evidently bent on robbery. A shot was fired and Garbutt rushed from the house. He was captured in Los Angeles a few hours later.

Conviction was based largely on the testimony of Virginia Hunn, 11-year-old adopted daughter, who said she saw her mother shot down and identified Garbutt as the one who did it.

FEDERAL TAX BILL PASSED BY SENATORS

Revenue Measure Finally Approved at 11 p. m., After 14 Days' Debate

GOES TO CONFERENCE

Differences with House to Be Ironed Out and Then President Will Get Bill

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13.—The federal tax reduction bill, that was designed to return to the nation something like a pre-war levy, was passed by a haggard senate at 11 o'clock last night, after 14 days of debate.

Carrying reduction of $450,000,000 from the present law, about $125,000,000 more than Secretary of the Treasury Mellon thought safe, the measure now goes to conference.

Committees representing the senate and the house will meet behind closed doors Monday and attempt to reconcile the changes made by the senate in the bill as passed by the house.

May Restore Auto Taxes.
It appears that the senate will recede from many of its actions and prune the total of the bill down so that it will come nearer to the figure Mellon advised. The house provision for an estate tax may be restored and the automobile and admissions taxes may be put back to make the reduction smaller.

The conferees will conclude their work before the end of next week and the bill will be signed by President Coolidge, so that the reductions will affect payments which must be made March 15.

The action of the senate came at the end of 12 hours of debate, even the weary little group of opponents to the measure praying for the end.

Never has a senate in the memory of legislators now holding office passed a revenue measure in as little time—even during the war days.

Coalition Can't Be Downed.
From the outset, it was shown that the coalition of Republicans and Democrats could not be overthrown.

Realizing that they could not afford to delay the measure by a long fight for victory, the rebellious group submitted after a protest, so that the reduction could be made effective March 15.

After the bill was passed, the senate took the first adjournment after the passage of the bill, until Monday for a breathing spell before considering it.

Here are some of the reductions made by the senate, showing how they differ from the present law and what chance they have to stand the conference:

Normal Income Tax Rates
Normal income taxes—The rates of 14 1/2 per cent on incomes of $4000; 2 per cent on the next $4000, and 5 per cent over $8000 have been adopted by both houses and will stand.

Exemptions—Exemptions for single men were raised from $1000 of the present law to $1500; married men from $2500 to $3500 and dependent allowances remain the same, $400, for each dependent. This has been accepted by both houses and will stand.

Surtaxes.—A graduation scale from 1 per cent on $10,000 to 20 per cent on $100,000; accepted by both houses and will stand. The new figures compared with the present law scale, ranging from 1 per cent on $10,000 to 40 per cent on $500,000.

Controversy on Estate Tax
Estate tax—This is a controversial issue between the two houses which must be ironed out in conference. The house adopted a scale ranging from 1 per cent on $50,000 to 10 per cent on $100,000 and allowing the states to collect 80 per cent of the levy. The senate wiped out the tax on "rock Los Angeles" and set the rate at 1 per cent on $10,000 to 40 per cent on $500,000. The house provision probably will be restored.

SEATTLE, Feb. 13.—Capt. George H. Wilkins, leader of the party; Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier, army observer, and other members of the latest aerial polar expedition, sailed out of Elliott bay today on the first leg of their northern adventure.

The steamer Victoria carries two giant Fokker steel planes. They will disembark at Seward, Alaska, from where the planes will be transported on the government railway to the rail head at Fairbanks, beyond which there is nothing but wilderness.

At Fairbanks, the planes will be assembled for the first flight, to the supply and food caches at Point Barrow, from which the polar flights will be made.

If plans as outlined here are carried out, the first hop from Barrow will be made late in March.

HIGH WATERS RUSH DOWN HILLS AND COVER ROAD; SCORE IN CLOSE ESCAPE

Passengers Finally Extricated From Autos Swept Against Fence By Unprecedented Deluge

SANTA FE TRAINS DELAYED

Twenty motorists on the San Diego highway, five miles north of San Juan Capistrano, narrowly escaped death or serious injury during a heavy rain, about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a torrent suddenly rushed down the hills adjoining the highway, and swept over the road, carrying with it the automobiles, which were washed from the highway and lodged against a fence.

A cloudburst, during the storm of yesterday afternoon, in the hills off Oso creek, is said to have been responsible for the flood.

Ten cars were in the water's path, as it suddenly swept through a little valley onto the unsuspecting motorists, who, a few seconds before, were driving through only 12 inches of water, which had crept on the highway.

Water, seven feet deep, swept across the highway, carrying with it logs and other debris which piled high against the fence on the opposite side, tearing it down and rolling on to the Santa Fe tracks, where the debris was piled up several feet deep.

Santa Fe passenger trains Nos. 73 and 74 were held up for several hours, while a crew of 50 men, equipped with picks and shovels, worked for into the night clearing the roadbed. Two long freight trains, northbound, were delayed for more than seven hours.

Passenger train No. 74, due in Santa Ana at 3:35 p. m., yesterday, was held here until 10:30 o'clock last night. No 73, due here at the same time from San Diego, did not arrive until 4 a. m. today. It was held at San Juan Capistrano throughout the night.

Automobiles along the highway, at the Oso creek bridge, were completely submerged when the crest of the water swept across the road and one sedan was carried approximately 300 feet up the road, only to be wrecked against the fence. The driver of this machine climbed through a window, just before his car was seen to turn suddenly over, and he saved himself from drowning by climbing on top of it, as it turned over and over, finally landing bottom side up against the fence.

Stranded for Hour
The driver was stranded for almost an hour, before the water receded sufficiently for him to wade to a dry place.

Another driver, of a small coupe, probably had the narrow escape. The current was so strong that it carried his machine along at an amazing rate of speed and he was unable to open the door. He finally broke out the glass door and dove into the water, intent on swimming. The current carried him like a straw and threw him violently against the fence, where he managed to hang on. He climbed on a fence post and remained there until rescued by other motorists.

Six machines were wrecked in the current, their occupants escaping the flood by hurriedly wading ashore.

One man stated that he was lined up behind several cars, waiting to see if a small car and a stage would be able to plow through the water that already was on the road. He heard a roar and, looking up, saw a mountain of water, sweeping down on him.

He said he then felt himself being lifted up on the water and felt his car away as it was going to turn over. He climbed up on top of it, with his suitcase, and when the car settled in the mire, took out his camera and took several pictures of the other machines in the water.

Mother Saves Infant
A woman, with a 3-month-old baby, riding in another machine, narrowly escaped death from drowning while trying to keep her baby's head above water. Water came into the sedan as high as the top of the front seat and when it threatened to trap the occupants of the car, Tom Forster, San Juan Capistrano youth, waded in and rescued the woman and child, transferring them to another machine further away, and which was on higher ground.

The mother was as calm as though she had been riding along the highway. She never spoke a word and did not seem to realize the danger to herself and her child.

Another woman, in another machine, also was transferred to a higher place from her car, a small touring car, when the water came up into the seat where she was sitting. This car later was carried away by the torrent.

O. Harby, cement worker of Santa, residing at 720 East Walnut street, was one of the victims of the flood. He said today that he was parked behind about 10

With heavy precipitations in all parts of the county, yesterday afternoon, last night and this forenoon, residents of Santa Ana and Orange county today faced one of the most prosperous years in the history of the county, in the opinion of men here who believe the fine rain storms of the last week insure bumper crops and a change in the mind attitude of the public that will be reflected in better business.

According to Louis Moulton, the precipitation at El Toro between 7 a. m. yesterday and the same hour today, totaled 3.19 inches. This is believed to be a record for a 24-hour fall at any point in Orange county.

Custodian Irwin, of the Orange County park, reported 1.10 inches of the 24 hours ended at 6 a. m. today, with an additional .90 of an inch falling between 6 a. m. and 10:30 a. m. today.

Virtually every station from which records were gathered today by the Register reports more rain this season than the total for last year.

In Santa Ana, the record to date is 6.47 inches, compared with a total, last year, of 5.92 inches, according to records kept by Hill and Son.

With the exception of El Toro, Placentia led other points in the matter of fall for the last 24 hours, the precipitation there being registered at 1.65 inches.

Perusal of the tabulated report herewith will disclose that Jupiter Pluvius slighted the beach districts Laguna Beach having 27 of an inch for the 24 hours, Huntington Beach .37 and Newport Beach .48.

The heavy rains have been beneficial in many ways, according to farmers. The citrus men particularly.

cars when the "big water" came, and that his small roadster was picked up and carried down stream. The car was wrecked. Harby added in the rescue of the women and last night, at 7 o'clock, managed to get his car, an almost complete wreck, out of the mire, and into a Capistrano garage.

Marooned at Mission Town
San Juan Capistrano, last night at 7:30, was a mass of marooned motorists. Men and women, their machines swamped in the hole where the torrent passed, or in San Juan Capistrano garages, where they were taken for repairs, walked the streets, seeking transportation to their homes. Fancy prices were offered for transportation to Santa Ana, with few takers. Garage men there did not want to make the trip, with disaster looming, and with the black clouds hanging overhead. A few motorists managed to find cars that were willing to take the chance.

Restaurants were filled to overflowing and every room in the San Juan hotel was taken for the night. Approximately 100 persons, passengers on train No. 73, which was tied up at San Juan Capistrano, were in the town for dinner. Men working on the tracks, with only lanterns to guide them, were forced to stop at 8 o'clock last night, when another heavy rain flooded the tracks at San Juan and north of there. This storm was of short duration, and no additional damage was reported.

Constable in Mud.
Motorcycle officers patrolled the roads and directed in the work to some extent. William Calla, constable of Capistrano, was in mud up to his hips as he directed the rescue of cars from the low place at the Oso creek bridge.

Loaded motor buses and cars were able to pass over the road at Oso creek shortly after 7:30 o'clock last night, and a few hours later the highway was absolutely clear.

Among the Santa Ana citizens blockaded by the cloudburst was County Clerk J. M. Backs, who was on his way home from San Diego. Backs investigated the situation, decided that he would leave his car in San Juan Capistrano, and complete the journey by train. But the train service, too, was blocked, he found, so he waited until the flooded highway was open to traffic and came home in his car.

The washout is the worst reported on the Santa Fe in recent years and probably the worst in Orange county in its history. The Santa Fe had a similar experience at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in San Diego county, just south of the Orange county line. The roadbed was covered by part of the dirt under the track which was washed out.

Fully 15 other machines were sunk deep in the mud along the San Diego highway at various places between Irvine and the San Diego county line, the mire being so deep in some places that drivers abandoned their cars and sought other transportation.

Sheriff Active in Relief.
In an effort to aid marooned motorists who were halted in San Juan Capistrano last night by flood waters over the San Diego highway, near Gallivan, Sheriff Sam Jernigan, with Dan Adams, deputy sheriff, braved the storm and the danger of becoming mired themselves, in order to bring Santa Ana people to their homes. It was learned here today.

Several Santa Ana persons who were on the Santa Fe passenger train coming in from San Diego, got off at San Juan Capistrano and were brought to Santa Ana. One of these was F. H. Zaiser, local business man and brother of Dr. H. E. Zaiser, head of the Orange County hospital.

BOARD WALK DAMAGED, BRIDGE WASHED OUT
More than two inches of rain, at Laguna Beach yesterday afternoon, caused serious damage to the city's board walk, along the ocean front and wiped out the huge bridge which connected the business district with the northern section of the city, according to word received here today.

Large streams of water, resembling raging mountain torrents, swept down from the hills, it was said.

A high tide, beating against the coast, aided the rain in its destruction of a large section of the board walk.

Several washouts were reported along the coast line, near Laguna Beach. A section of a ranch, near

The Register will inaugurate, on Monday, a new and complete citrus market summary, containing sales and prices of lemons and oranges at all of the country's leading fruit marts.

This comprehensive market report has been arranged by the United Press for the exclusive benefit of its Southern California clients. It will contain the number of cars sold, trend of the market and range of average prices daily (except Saturday) of the New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis citrus markets. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, the Cincinnati and Cleveland markets also will be carried. This is another exclusive United Press feature, arranged for its Southern California newspaper readers, which should prove popular with newspaper readers in the citrus-growing regions of the Southland.

SEVEN HOUSES ARE FLOATING IN BAY

Seven houses were floating in the bay at Anaheim Landing, at noon today, the result of the storm which broke there this morning. The bridge connecting Anaheim Landing and Seal Beach is reported about to collapse and all traffic through Seal Beach and Anaheim Landing has been halted by traffic officers, who are on duty on the state highway. Waves beating across the sand stretches have undermined the paving west of Seal Beach and Anaheim Landing, leaving the paving suspended in the air.

One foot of sand covers the state highway just west of Seal Beach and the Pacific Electric tracks have been washed away in several places. Transportation of passengers is being made inland by P. E. buses. Construction crews of Pacific Electric and state highway department workers are shoveling the sand from the pavement but it is believed that traffic over this road will not be permissible for several days.

MAN AT VENTURA DROWNS IN SEA

VENTURA, Feb. 13.—Battered by breakers, a portion of the Ventura Wharf and Warehouse company's pier collapsed and fell into the sea today.

George Procter, 59, company bookkeeper, was drowned. Damage estimated at $50,000 was caused by the breakers.

Debris from the crumpled pier was scattered for a mile along the coast. Procter's body was sought by coast guards among the broken pilings.

Giant breakers have been beating against the pier for days, endangering its safety.

High tide was reached about 9 a. m., sending huge walls of water on to the beach and causing damage to property along the water front.

HIGH SEAS LASH CALIFORNIA SHORES

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—High seas beat upon the shores of California today, while rain drenched the state and brought the season's precipitation to normal.

With the highest tides in years sweeping in, coast towns reported severe damage from the waves and winds accompanying. Driven by a 60-mile gale, the breakers battered the coast from one end of the state to the other.

Locally, the wreckage of the dynamited schooner Yosemite was swept against a pipe line pier, tearing out long sections. The coast highway was washed out in many places by the waves, which broke across the thoroughfare.

At Santa Monica, San Luis Obispo and San Diego, the storm was still beating in today, although showing some signs of lessening.

Storm warnings, however, were still flying, with the weather bureau predicting additional gales.

A sun porch and dining room of a Pismo Beach ocean front hotel were torn away. Miles of a small railway at Port San Luis were undermined. Santa Cruz reported heavy damage, with a casino and two restaurants washed down.

While the breakers tore at the coast, rain covered the entire state, in some sections so heavy that motor and electric traffic was delayed. Little flood damage was anticipated, however, and the loss will be far more than offset by benefit to crops.

MISSION BEACH HOMES WASHED INTO OCEAN

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 13.—Unprecedented high seas washed several homes in the Mission Beach section of this city into the ocean today. A number of other dwellings were threatened by the high tides, which have been pounding the area for several days.

Hundreds of citizens, aided by city employees, worked frantically in the construction of bulkheads to hold back the heavy seas. Residents of the section were moving their property to higher ground.

BLAME FAULTY FLUE FOR FIRE AT VILLA PARK

Fire, said to have been caused by a faulty flue, gutted the interior of the Villa Park grammar school at 9:30 o'clock last night. The damage is estimated at $15,000, fully covered by insurance.

The matter of accommodating the 71 children who attended the school will be taken up Monday morning. It was announced today by County Superintendent of Schools Mitchell. The fire did not damage the one-room annex to the school. The walls are all that remain of the main structure, which was erected three years ago.

The Orange fire department made a record run to the scene of the fire, covering the four miles of slippery pavement in less than six minutes.

Trouble was experienced with the flue two weeks ago, it is said.

No one was in the school at the time of the fire.

lary are delighted, for it has rid them, to a large extent, of their fight against the red spider. It is claimed that this menial pest has been almost entirely swept from trees of which they had a hold.

Excepting for brief periods, the rain has come so easily and gently that every drop of the living-giving fluid has sunk into the ground, storing moisture that later will be of vast benefit to growing trees, grains and vegetables.

No damage has resulted in Santa Ana, either to the system of the Edison company or the telephone company. No reports have been made of flooded basements, although gutters along business streets at times ran more than bank full.

ALL STORM WARNINGS ARE ORDERED DOWN

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—California's third storm within a week, which did much damage to coast cities and settlements, had blown itself out today and settled down to another day of general rains, with snow in the Sierras.

The U. S. weather bureau, in announcing that storm warnings all along the coast had been ordered down, said that there was practical certainty of rain in western Oregon Monday and California probably would continue to share in the precipitation.

Rainfall at almost all points in California reached normal and in some cases went above. Snowfall in the Sierras was liberal enough to afford new hope that the summer water supply from the mountain-tined streams may yet be provided.

Paso Robles led the state in the last 24 hours in rainfall, with 1.92 inches. Eureka had none. Other points reported as follows:

Bakersfield, 1.6; Chico, .77; Fresno, .26; Merced, .28; Oroville, .45; Porterville, .40; Red Bluff, .49; Sacramento, .55; San Diego, .15; San Francisco, 1.18; San Jose, 1.18; San Luis Obispo, .74; Santa Rosa, .58; Stockton, .54.

WEATHERMEN ANNOUNCE STORM'S FORCE SPENT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—Torrential rains and winds, which have swept over Southern California in the last 24 hours, will subside before Sunday, according to official weathermen.

There will be occasional showers tonight and Sunday, but the main force of the storm has been spent, it was announced at the local weather station.

Check of the storm's damage today revealed miles of roads had been undermined. Miles of railroad right-of-way were inundated between San Diego and San Diego.

Hundreds of motorists were held up on the state highway south of here.

Many beach shacks, between Santa Barbara and Los Angeles were damaged by breakers along the Pacific coast.

A wharf at Ventura, battered by high tides, collapsed, causing death of one man and $50,000 damage.

High winds uprooted trees and telephone poles at Porterville.

Scores of cottages along the coast at Santa Monica, Topanga canyon, Castle Rock and Las Tunas canyon were flooded by high tides.

Total rainfall figures at 9 a. m. were as follows:
Corona, 1.35; Los Angeles harbor, .62; Mt. Wilson, 4.11; Pasadena, 2.34; Pomona, 2.10; Redlands, 1.46; Riverside, 1.16; Santa Barbara, 2.25; San Bernardino, 1.63; San Fernando, 2.85.

But the principle of such laws is the negation or the destruction of democracy. If democracy means the rule of ignorance, it can not survive. If it means the assumption by the majority of that tyranny over thought which we have wrested from kings and prelates, it ought not to survive. If it could suppress freedom of learning and teaching, no other freedom would be worth while. If it even tries to do so, it has lost the moral background of democracy, which is respect for the liberties even of minorities. Censorship of science in the pretended name of religion, or of history and economics in the pretended name of patriotism, is irreverent and unpatriotic, as well as unscientific, unhistoric, un-economic, unenlightened and undemocratic.

A New Baby in Your Home?

IF THERE is, you have not done your full duty unless you have made—or revised—your Will, assured its fulfillment by appointing a corporate executor and trustee, and planned adequately for the future.

Bear in mind, too, that a new baby may upset your old will, for the law recognizes a minor child's right to inherit. In the law it is share and share alike. You may think the youngest needs more than the eldest.

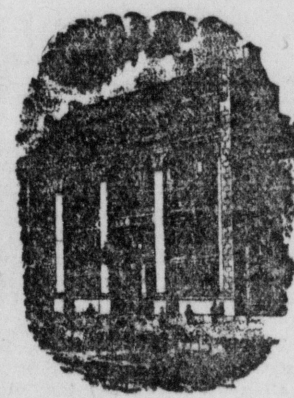

By giving proper thought and attention to these important matters now, you will make the baby's future safer, and yours happier.

Our experience and judgment in these complicated matters is yours for the asking

Announcement

To the People of Santa Ana and Vicinity:

In our local advertising in The Register last week, copy was taken from our circular which read "Closing Day Special," which we, of course, intended that it was the special item we had on sale for the closing day of our big Seven-day Sale. We have been informed that there were those who took it in the light that we were closing out our business in Santa Ana.

We are sorry, for this mis-interpretation of our good intentions in the matter, and for the benefit of the readers of this paper, and in fact to all the people in this section, we wish to inform you that we have taken a long term lease on the store at 420 North Sycamore Street, in Santa Ana, and that the Link Stores, Inc., have no intention of quitting this field.

In all our career we have so far never closed a store in any city which we have selected.

We also wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of Santa Ana and vicinity for their fine co-operation and loyal support. On Saturday, the opening day of our 9-Cent Sale, fully 5000 people visited this store, and when we realize that this store has been opened only two months, we feel that the people of Santa Ana have responded wonderfully.

We shall always endeavor to make this store your store—a store where you can come or send the children and always feel that we will give you value received, and even more for your dollar than you can get elsewhere. In future, as well as in the past, we shall do all we can to merit your patronage.

We again thank you, and ask for your continued patronage. We are here to serve you—come in and let us prove it to you.

We have a nicely appointed lunch counter where home cooked food is served daily, at a nominal price. We have also established Rest Rooms for ladies, and we especially invite the ladies to come here for your lunch and to rest. In other cities where we have located these conveniences, many have taken advantage of it, and we wish you all to know that we are glad indeed to be of service to you.

Very truly yours,

Death Notices

A WORD OF COMFORT
When your lot in life perplexes you, lean hard on your consciousness of the omnipotence of Him who holds the planets in their courses and take heart.
By estimating distances through light waves, astronomers have determined that if we could travel on a light wave to the moon in a single second, to the sun in eight minutes, to Neptune in four hours, to the nearest star in four years, and to Sirius in eight years, it would take fifteen years to reach Altair and 325 years to the Pleiades, traveling 11,000,000 miles per minute.
The God who controls such distances is able to sustain you through your most trying hours.

ORANGE GROVE SALE RESULTS IN COURT SUIT

Demanding cancellation of an agreement to sell an orange grove, or an alternative judgment of $5000 damages, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Dimmick, of Fullerton, today had a suit on file in superior court, against Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lehmberg, who purchased the grove from the Dimmicks, also against W. L. Morris, realty agent, who negotiated the sale, and the Fullerton Mutual Orange Growers' association.

Chief complaint of the Dimmicks, in their suit, is based on the claim that Lehmberg has placed two liens on the same orange crop, one held by Dimmick and the other by the fruit association. Both liens are supposed to be first liens, it is said.

The plaintiffs claim that Lehmberg had arranged for an advance from the fruit association, amounting to $3000, with which he made first payment on the ranch to Dimmick giving the fruit association a first lien on the crop. He then gave Dimmick a first lien on the same crop to secure a $2000 payment due Dimmick July 20. Morris, who was paid $5000 commission, it is said, knew that Lehmberg had arranged the prior lien and concealed the fact from Dimmick, thereby violating his duty as their agent, they charge. They want the court to grant judgment against Morris for return of the $5000 commission.

Lehmberg, they charge, represented himself as the owner of considerable property and also represented that the $3000 he paid down on the grove was his own and not borrowed funds. They later found that he owned little or no property, the plaintiffs state. Morris knew these facts too, they charge.

The suit was filed to cancel the agreement and restore them the property, or secure $5000 damages against Lehmberg and Morris, besides the return of Morris' commission. In addition, the plaintiffs ask a restraining order to prevent either Lehmberg or the fruit association from picking the orange crop. A decree quieting title to the property is likewise sought.

Household Economics

Fourth Section
Gowned in quaintly lovely colonial costumes, Mrs. James A. Tarpley, Mrs. F. E. Moore and Mrs. S. M. Padgas greeted members and guests of Ebells fourth household economics section yesterday at the clubhouse where a Lincoln-Washington birthday program was staged following luncheon served in the section room.

Two long tables were arranged for the lunch period, each covered with baskets of garden flowers which emphasized the red, white and blue of the flag. Tall blue candles bearing small vignettes of Abraham Lincoln and nut cups simulating blue candlesticks from which a candy taper rose, furthered the patriotic motif as did the hatchet place cards bearing individual telephone numbers rather than names.

A menu of southern baked ham with candied sweet potatoes, asparagus tips in white sauce, hot rolls, Roman punch, perfection salad, coffee and floating island, was served by the trio of colonial dames.

At the afternoon session conducted by Mrs. Charles Mitchell, roll call was answered by sayings of Lincoln or stories about him. Mrs. Neal Beisel and Mrs. R. E. Langley were welcomed to section membership and Mrs. John Clarkson, Mrs. Eleanor Elliott and Mrs. J. B. Roberts were greeted as visitors with special guest honors accorded Mrs. Roberts who is from British Columbia, a cousin and house-guest of Mrs. Tarpley.

Future plans of the section were discussed and the date Tuesday, February 23 selected for the dinner and evening at which entertainment of husbands of the members. The affair will be staged at the clubhouse and Mrs. Mitchell named her committees on menu, decorations and entertainment.

An interesting decision was made regarding a general bridge party which the section will present at one of the earliest post-Lenten social events of the club. It will be an afternoon affair of Tuesday, April 6, and the section as a whole will devote all its attention to making it one of the most delightful affairs in Ebells history.

With business matters concluded, Mrs. E. U. Dickinson introduced Mrs. Clarkson who presented a delightfully varied group of readings in her usual pleasing manner. The numbers were chosen in the main, to express the spirit of the day.

"Old Glory," the opening selection, was prefaced by Mrs. Clarkson with an informal little talk relating to James Whitcomb Riley's understanding of human hearts as exemplified not only in such stirring poems as "Old Glory," but in the short numbers she gave later. Her program included "Each In His Own Tongue," "Oh Heart of Mine," "Spirit of '76" and a number of others in lighter vein, such as an Irish story "Tit for Tat," and Riley's delicious bit of childhood lore, "The Spoiled Child."

Mesdames Clyde Eugene MacBumey and Neal Beisel will be hostesses at the March meeting. Yesterday's session closed with a shower of garments and articles for the Day nursery.

Second Section
Twenty-nine members of Ebells second household economics section were present at the latest meeting, to answer to roll call with hints on interior decoration. The meeting featured a very appetizing luncheon served at 1 o'clock by Mesdames Clyde Walker, Gilbert P. Campbell, J. C. Lamb and Clyde Horton.

Mrs. Featherly and Mrs. Taylor, the latter a house guest of Mrs. Alex P. Nelson, were welcomed guests.

The Town Is Judged By Its Paper

Under date of February 9, the Register received the following letter from a professional man in a Middle Western state.

Santa Ana Daily Register, Santa Ana, Calif.
Dear Sirs:
Please find inclosed check payable to Mr. J. P. Baumgartner, to cover six months' subscription to the Register. Please have Mr. Baumgartner indorse same, and not the Register Co. My banker might think I want to move to California. And I do but I do not want him to know it.

You surely have a fine paper, and if you have as good a town as you have a paper it is surely a fine town.

HERO OF WORLD WAR APPOINTED HEAD OF HOME

Capt. Nelson M. Holderman, of Santa Ana, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for the heroic manner in which he commanded the right wing of the so-called "Lost Battalion," has been appointed Superintendent of the Veterans' home in Yountville, Napa county, and will take over the command about March 1, according to information received here today.

Captain Holderman, who was in charge of the guard of honor that accompanied the body of President Harding from San Francisco to Washington and thence to Marion, O., has just retired from the army because of wounds suffered in the World war. He recently underwent treatment in the Walter Reed hospital, in Washington, D. C., and expects to leave Monday for California.

Holderman is one of the most decorated officers ever to be retired by the American army. Besides holding the Congressional Medal of Honor, because of which he was chosen to play a conspicuous part in the burial at Arlington, in 1921, of the Unknown Soldier, he has the Distinguished Service Cross and the war crosses of virtually all of the allies, except Japan, which did not award such honors.

He has served as post adjutant at the Presidio in San Francisco and also as assistant to the commander of the ninth corps area.

For several months following the war, Holderman was superintendent of the home at Yountville. He resigned in order to return to the regular army.

Deserter of Army Gives Himself Up

Walking calmly into the police station here last night, Rudolph Stachel, 20, from Illinois, told officers he was a deserter from the U. S. army. He is in the county jail.

According to Stachel's story, he deserted the army at Fort Sheridan, Ill., in November. He had been making his way west since that time.

Stachel wants to be sent back to his post.

When Is Your Mortgage Due?

Many people do not realize that a building and loan association can make loans on homes already built, and take up existing mortgages. This is one of the important features of our business—furnishing a means of getting his home paid to the man who is tired of renewing his mortgage. Our payments are just as easy to pay as rent, but you have the pleasant feeling that you are paying off a little on your loan each month, rather than the uncomfortable sensation that you aren't getting ahead. We offer several repayments of loans—the period of maturity being considerably shortened if you make large monthly payments.

O. M. ROBBINS, Secretary

MATERIAL COST ON NEW FORDS IS INCREASED

Improved models of the Ford and a four-passenger, three-window Lincoln sedan are being displayed at the auto show here by George Dunton, Ford and Lincoln dealer.

"The shopping list taken to market by the Ford Motor company, when buying materials for the improved Ford cars, would impress even Santa Claus," Dunton said. "Yet the most canny housewife is no more critical or painstaking in disposing of her modest budget than the Ford purchasing agents in spending millions."

"The new longer and lower bodies," all-steel construction and "closed cars in colors" made necessary vast increases in supplies of the materials which had gone into the discontinued line as well as distinctly new raw materials and equipment in staggering amounts.

"Changing over to all-steel bodies alone meant an increase in consumption of steel of that type of more than 38,000 tons per year. Increasing the size of the gasoline tank and changing its location called for another increase of 2000 tons. Effecting the changes in the design of the running board and shield to give greater rigidity and improved appearance required 5000 extra tons of that type of steel.

"Other improvements and refinements were proportionate. A year's production of the enlarged wheel brakes would require, it was estimated, 13,000 extra tons of cast iron. 10,000 tons of steel and 3500 miles additional asbestos brake lining. Color enamel to the volume of 100,000 gallons were estimated to cover a year's production of 'closed cars in colors.' Adoption of nickle-plated headlight rims and radiator shells as standard equipment on closed cars required 125 tons of pure nickel anodes."

ORDER CURB LINE SIGNS TAKEN DOWN

Owners of gasoline and other signs, placed on the curb lines of the streets of Santa Ana, today were warned by City Marshal Claude Rogers to remove the signs immediately. A city ordinance, adopted a week ago, provided that the signs be taken down.

Rogers said that he personally would instruct the owners to remove the signs and see that the order was enforced.

The ordinance affects hundreds of oil and gasoline signs throughout the city, many in the business districts. All of the signs, to which the ordinance refers, are on city property, it was said.

Police News

Henry J. Lockett, Orange, Route 1, reported the theft of a motor-meter and radiator cap from his machine last night, while it was parked in the 800 block on Spurgeon street.

Charged with being drunk, Walter W. Brown, Newport Beach, pleaded not guilty to the charge in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court shortly before noon today and his trial was set for February 19. He was arrested last night by Frank Vaughn, state motorcycle officer, near Costa Mesa.

John R. Gray, 41, charged with being drunk, was arrested last night by Jesse Elliott, deputy sheriff. The man is in the county jail.

M. Lundray, 40, was arrested last night on a vagrancy charge. He is lodged in the county jail.

Let "Buttress" Be Your Barrier Against the Greedy Rush of FIRE!

Commenting on the fact that a serious fire at a popular bathing resort was checked by a thin covering of gypsum wall board on one of the buildings, a newspaper editorial says: "It is to the public advantage that every form of fire-proof and fire-resisting construction shall be used. The cheaper kinds are the most important as they are more likely to be used voluntarily outside the fire limits."

Because BUTTRESS WALLBOARD is made of pure gypsum rock plaster, it is widely recognized as an indispensable part of modern fire-proof construction—good enough for a mansion—economical enough for a cottage.

STUDEBAKER TO EXHIBIT 2 NEW CLOSED MODELS

Two new additions to the Studebaker line, in closed cars, will be displayed, Harry D. Riley, dealer, announced, at the automobile show. These two cars are the new Big Six five-passenger sedan and the new Big Six five-passenger club coupe.

"Both of these new additions are developments of the Big Six on a 120-inch wheel base and due to the abundant power and medium weight they provide the finest type of performance ever offered by any Studebaker car," Riley said.

"Another interesting point about these cars is the fact that there are only seven cars with rated horsepower equal to that of the Big Six engine, and their prices are from two to four times that of the Big Six. It is because of these advantages in power and price that the Big Six are rated as the fastest-selling high-powered cars in the world."

"This new five-passenger Big Six sedan, which has but recently been added to the line, is richly upholstered in genuine mohair. The metal hardware is of Butler silver finish. Dome light, rear corner reading lights, inlaid walnut door panels, ash receiver, toggle grips and silk shades to match the upholstery are included in the appointments."

"The body is richly lacquered in Studebaker blue with the upper section of jet black in contrast. The smart appearance is accentuated by neat coil lights, nickel plated radiator and natural wood finish wheels."

"The car is characterized by its extreme comfort and fine performance. Long, resilient springs, full balloon tires and snubbers provide the utmost ease in riding. Four broad doors allow easy entrance and exit for the passengers. "The new Big Six 5-passenger club coupe is the other addition to the Big Six line. In addition to its highest type of comfort and luxury, it is a two-door closed car design with wide doors that allow the passengers to enter or leave the car without disturbing the passengers in the front seats. The front seats are of the bucket type and are tilted at the exact angle for maximum comfort."

"The lower section of this car is durably lacquered in Miami gray, the upper section in black."

S. A. Man Fined In Orange Court

Alvin Stevens, of Santa Ana, arrested by Orange police Saturday night and held on charges of possession and transportation of liquor, was fined a total of $500 when he appeared before City Recorder Ingie this morning. Later, the fine was reduced to $100. Stevens gave his occupation as that of laborer.

Liquor charges against two Santa Ana men, H. C. McClure, and George Stevens, were dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

Lem Rogers, of Santa Ana, charged with the possession of liquor, refused to plead when brought before Recorder Ingie and asked until Monday morning to enter a plea.

Whittier paid for his education by making slippers at 25 cents a pair.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE BRINGS JOY TO MINERS

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 13.—The anthracite region today had recovered its equilibrium after the joyous announcement that the long and bitter coal strike was virtually ended and this section hummed again with activity.

While the hard coal miners are not expected to return to work until Thursday, thus deferring for at least a week the first shipments of coal to the seaboard, operators began advance preparations at once. Railroads rounded up forces of trainmen dropped for the duration of the suspension and empty cars started rolling toward the mines.

The mines are in good physical condition, due to the keeping of 3000 maintenance men at work during the suspension.

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD

Text: John 10:1-5, 11-16

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold, but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber.

But he that entereth in by the door is the shepherd of the sheep. To him the porter openeth; and the sheep hear his voice; and he calleth his own sheep by name, and leadeth them out.

And when he putteth forth his own sheep, he goeth before them, and the sheep follow him; for they know his voice.

And a stranger will they not follow, but will flee from him; for they know not the voice of strangers.

I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep.

But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth; and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep, and the hireling is gone, and knoweth not for the sheep.

I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. As the father knoweth me, even so the Father; and I lay down my life for the sheep.

And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist

The figure of Jesus as the good shepherd is one that has become indelibly fixed in the imagination of the world.

Some one has pointed out that no less than 500 times in the Bible is God's care for his people illustrated by this figure of the shepherd and his care for his sheep.

The figure has been even more emphasize the details in the analogy.

The Good Shepherd

Jesus leads his sheep; he draws them by the richness of his love and the intimacy of his care and knowledge of them. He portrays the kindest and best tenderness of care and affection, and then he makes the application to himself, "I am the good shepherd."

Is there some strange conceit in the words? How quickly any such thought disappears as Jesus links this goodness with service and sacrifice.

It is in love and in the willingness to give that the greatness of Christ is revealed. Note how often in this lesson he makes this reference to laying down his life. Note also how Jesus emphasizes the mutual aspect of this relationship between shepherd and sheep, "I know mine and mine own know me."

What does Jesus mean by the reference to other sheep which are not of this fold? We have interpreted it to mean that there are many who have the spirit of Jesus, who would desire to know him and follow him, who have never heard of him and who have never had the opportunity or who have never understood the meaning of his teaching and appeal.

These words have constituted great missionary impulses in the life of the church, but the response to these impulses have been entirely inadequate. Suppose that we who have known Jesus were to speak and tell of him more freely and widely as the good shepherd, can we not believe that many who are now drifting about as sheep without a shepherd would welcome a place in his fold?

enforced by the way in which artists have caught and portrayed its meaning. The shepherd's crook through the bishop's staff has come to symbolize in some communions the shepherding quality of the church.

So much has been said about Jesus as the good shepherd following the illustration as it relates to shepherding in eastern lands that it seems unnecessary that we should

Surprise Gift Shower Is Valentine Event For Bride-elect

LESPECIALLY appropriate to the season of hearts and cupid, was the pretty party with which Mrs. W. Ralph Barker yesterday, complimented her sister, Miss Rosslyn Grover, and the latter's betrothal to P. M. Rogers, superintendent of the California Cordage company of Orange.

Mrs. Barker entertained at her home, 1117 South Bush street, where valentine appointments shared the charm of frezias and pink sweet peas. Tea towels were provided for the guests to hem, and the completed towels were presented Miss Grover to add to her supply of household linens. The surprise event of the afternoon came when small Patty Cheney and Master Dohrman Dane wheeled a little cart into the room and paused before the honor guest. She found that the cart held all manner of dainty gifts of a widely varied nature, for use in the new home to be established in the spring.

After the pretty gifts had been duly admired by all the guests, Mrs. Barker arranged small tables with attractive linens, centered each one with sweet peas and maidenhair fern, and assisted by Mrs. Cheney, served an enjoyable salad with wafers and coffee. Nuts were served in dainty rose petal cups and at each place was a heart and cupid favor.

Miss Grover and Mr. Rogers have not yet announced the date of their marriage but admit that it will be an early spring event, probably in March.

The interested friends who joined in celebrating the betrothal and showering the bride-elect with gifts, included her hostess and sister, Mrs. Barker, her mother, Mrs. Ross Grover, Mrs. Barker's mother-in-law, Mrs. W. D. Barker, Mrs. Roy Barker of La Habra, Mrs. C. H. Chapman, Mrs. Frank Dane and small son Dohrman, Mrs. Emma Etchison, Mrs. Otto Jacobs, Mrs. C. F. Skirvin sr., Mrs. C. F. Skirvin jr., Mrs. C. A. Leamer, Mrs. Burton Wright, Mrs. Raymond Gurn and little daughter Bonnie, Miss Elva Chapman and Mrs. Gelmore Cheney and small daughter, Patty.

Varied Social Events Of Past Week

Birthday Surprise

A merry gathering of relatives and friends which celebrated the birthday of Mrs. Bruce Hays, 292 South Sycamore street, came as a complete surprise to the honoree upon her return yesterday afternoon from a pleasant drive.

She found her home transformed by many beautiful flowers and blossoming plants, which offered their cheer in contrast to the rainy scene without the windows. Musical numbers rendered by Mrs. Ernest Sawyer and by Miss Bernice Hays, daughter of the home, were highly appreciated by the guests.

At the tea hour, enjoyable refreshments served included two beautiful birthday cakes made presented by Mrs. Richard Cassion and Mrs. Thomas Townsend. Two hours of lively conversation and music followed, ere the merry group dispersed with friendly wishes for many more happy birthdays for Mrs. Hays.

Enjoying the surprise event with the hostess, were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Dunkin, Messrs. E. E. Wickersheim, J. Williams, O. H. Dunkin, Ernest Sawyer, Richard Cassion, Thomas Townsend, Brand, A. V. Napier, E. J. Naish, Carrie Coffman, Gladys Adams, Master Jimmie Adams and Miss Marjorie Adams.

Dinner Party
Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Robinson were hosts Thursday evening at one of those delightful dinners, which they so much enjoy giving to cozier of their old friends.

Mrs. Robinson used a valentine motif, which she carried out with pink and white spring blossoms and valentine place cards on the dinner table. The tasty menu was served at 6:30 o'clock, and the remainder of the evening passed with social chat.

Besides the hosts, covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Sharpless of Tustin, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Quick, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Vandermast, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Baker.

South Flower Club
Members of the South Flower street club were pleasantly entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Hawkins of Fairview street. Valentine thoughts were expressed in charming decorations of the home, and also in pretty place cards used at the refreshment hour. Guests were seated at a table for the serving.

For Little Maid
Mrs. L. M. Hutton entertained a number of little folks Saturday afternoon at her home 1916 Maple avenue, in honor of the eighth birthday anniversary of her niece, Juanita Redington.

SANTA ANA HAS TWO PRIZE BABIES

Two of the choicest products of a community noted for its splendid fruits and flowers, are the dainty baby girl and sturdy little man pictured above. They are two Santa Ana babies who were among the 500 chosen for their perfection from among over 18,000 entrants in a better babies contest.

The blonde little maid is Rosemarie Chast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Eugene Chast, 822 Flower street, and the handsome laddie is Master Wallace Lee Dean.

Two-and-a-half-year-old son of the Duff Deans of 1414 West Washington street. The contest in which the two children reaped honors, was the third annual one conducted in Los Angeles by the Los Angeles Examiner and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company.

Master Wallace Lee Dean represents the fourth generation of his family residing in the county. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dennis of East Chapman avenue, Orange, while his proud great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Neff of North Ross street. Nat Neff, city engineer, is an uncle to the young future president. The laddie took a grand prize after scoring in four divisions of the contest.

Dainty Miss Rosemarie is a granddaughter of the late H. Clay Kellogg, civil engineer who planned the famous Magnolia Drive at Riverside. Her mother was formerly Miss Rose Oahu Kellogg.

Church Society

Missionary Circle
The Young Women's Missionary circle of the First Christian church held its guest night Tuesday with Mrs. William H. Rash presiding. Mrs. Porter gave the address of welcome and the opening prayer after which Mrs. Princess Long of Ontario, honor guest of the evening, favored with the selection, "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Glenda May Kahler.

Mrs. Long is internationally prominent as a leader of religious music. After her song, Mrs. Rash read a paper on South America, study topic for the evening. Mrs. Long talked on the aims and ideals of the Missionary circle, closing her talk with an appropriate song after which a pageant was given by members of the circle.

The play, "The Voices of the Women," represented the various nations pleading for America to send them the "good tidings." Those taking part were dressed in appropriate costumes and were: Mexico, Mrs. Sue Parsons; Mohammedan, Mrs. Cleo Withrow; Hindu widow, Mrs. Alle Waters; child widow, Ida Montgomery; Africa, Mrs. Joe Kairsey; China, Mrs. Hule Pond; Korea, Mrs. Gladys Curry; Japan, Mrs. Stella Rashi; America, Mrs. Thomas Williams, and Conscience, Mrs. Bessie Calhoun.

This pageant will be repeated by request at the Sunday evening service at the church.

The guests were conducted to the community house and refreshments were served by the girls in costume. Decorations of lavender and white adorned the dining room.

Delta Alpha Class
Despite the cloudy skies and rain of Thursday evening the Sherman home, 614 North Shelton street, was a lively place when Mrs. Wheatley entertained the Delta Alpha class of the First M. E. Sunday school at a surprise party for her sisters, the Misses Elizabeth and Laura Sherman, celebrating Miss Laura's birthday.

Conversation and guessing games were enjoyed by all. The class teacher, V. L. Steward, presented Miss Laura with a basket filled with beautiful sweet peas as a birthday gift from the class.

Sandwiches, cookies, birthday cake and chocolate were served by the hostess.

Those present were Misses Bertha Oliver, Mamie Lamb, Nellie O'Brien, Esther Hendrickson, Minnie Wild, Etta Hale, Clara Barns, Irma DeBarr, Minnie Daubendiek, Ida Reid, Elizabeth and Laura Sherman, Alta Thomas, Mrs. Ivy Olson, Mr. and Mrs. V. ## Two Hostesses Choose Valentine Motif For 500 Party

CHARMINGLY spring-like were the details of a gay little party which Mrs. Benjamin Herick and Miss Rhea McDow gave last night at the Herick home, 112 Church street, when French bouquets of spring blossoms and valentine decorations were employed.

Four tables were arranged for 500, chosen entertainment of the evening, and at the close of the series of games, a pretty hand-decorated crystal candlestick was awarded Mrs. Leo Minihan as first prize.

Mrs. Minihan and Miss Clara Kramer had the unusual experience of remaining at the head table throughout the evening, and finally had to cut for the prize, fortune favoring Mrs. Minihan on the cut. Miss Alla Neeley, with low score, received a weird black cat bearing a clever verse of consolation for holding such poor cards, and advice which, if followed carefully, would insure a future holding of trumps.

After the gift award, the hostesses served ice cream, cake and bonbons at the small tables which had been arranged with pretty linens, and cakes expressed the heart motif.

Enjoying the merry evening with the two hostesses were Mrs. James Daniel, Mrs. Cecyl Drake, Mrs. W. M. Cory, Mrs. Leo Minihan, Mrs. Andrew Lykke, Mrs. Raymond Young, Mrs. Bruce Weiler and the Misses Clara Kramer, Julia Linsenhart, Helena Lieberman, Beatrice Reiley, Lenabelle Hughes, Evelyn Wurster and Alla Neeley.

Daughters of Confederacy

Mrs. E. C. Martin, Mrs. Barger, Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Looney were co-hostesses to United Daughters of the Confederacy Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Looney's parents, Colonel and Mrs. R. S. Kimberlin on South Main street, where a delightful afternoon was spent by thirty members.

Mrs. Fay Gardner was an applicant for membership. Other business matters discussed included the suggestion that the board investigate the possibilities of other investments, the gas stock owned by the society having matured.

An impromptu program of Victoria numbers included a favorite of Col. Kimberlin's, "The Minister's Visit to Sister Sorrowful." Miss Elizabeth Archer, grand-daughter of the home, gave a much appreciated reading, "An Order for a Picture," and an amusing encore number representing a small boy forgetting his recitation.

During the social period the hostesses served punch, dainty small cakes and wafers. Frezias and ferns adorned the pleasant dining room and Roman hyacinths perfumed the atmosphere of the living room.

George W. Young, Olive Lopez, S. E. Grotty, Elizabeth Dryer, Leo Schmiedeberg, H. A. Shugart, Frank Koss and the Misses Barbara and Bertha Klatt.

LET ANAHEIM OIL CONTRACT TO STANDARD

ANAHEIM, Feb. 13.—The bid submitted by the Standard Oil company for furnishing 2400 barrels of crude oil for street resurfacing work in the city, was accepted at the regular meeting of the city council. Prices asked by the various concerns participating in the competition ranged from $1.23 to $1.75 per barrel. The Standard bid of $1.23 was lowest.

ANAHEIM WILL ADOPT LAW ON TREE PLANTING

ANAHEIM, Feb. 13.—Further steps toward the initiation of a unified tree planting campaign in Anaheim were taken at a meeting of the city's tree committee, at which Ernest Brauntun, consulting horticulturist, appeared in an advisory capacity.

After a thorough survey of the city, Mr. Brauntun advised delay in the campaign until the city can draft and pass a tree-planting ordinance making tree planting compulsory and specifying the types of trees to be planted in the various sections of the city.

"Set trees that will make your city distinctive," the specialist urged. "The visitor who comes here from the various sections does not want to see trees which make him think of the forbidding winters he has left. He wants to see billowy, friendly trees. He comes to California for something different; do not disappoint him."

Promoters of the project are now gathering data for the forming of a tree-planting ordinance to be presented to the city council for action. Plans are being rushed and it is hoped that actual tree planting can be effected this winter.

D. Fess and F. B. Willis, of Ohio.

120,000 FEET OF LUMBER BROUGHT TO NEWPORT BAY BY BARGE FROM SAN PEDRO

NEWPORT BEACH, Feb. 13.—More than 120,000 feet of lumber have been brought into Newport bay during the week on the barge Newport, chartered recently by the Southern California Forwarding company. It is understood that the company has secured a charter on the barge line for a three months period, with the privilege of renewing the service at that time.

With shipments averaging more than 100,000 feet of lumber a week, it is shown that during the next three months, approximately 1,800,000 feet of lumber will be brought into Orange county's port. This lumber is taken directly from the lumber ships at San Pedro and brought here, where it is distributed to various lumber companies at a much lower freight charge than had been brought to Orange county by rail or truck.

The Newport Beach Lumber company has received all the lumber shipped into the harbor during the week.

The trip from San Pedro to the Orange county port can be made in about four and one-half hours, according to Capt. F. A. Baughn, of the barge.

The captain also declared that he had no trouble entering the harbor without a pilot.

Prospective expansion of the line will include shipments of the lumber, pipes, hardware and other commodities, according to A. S. Knapp, of the Southern California Forwarding company. Knapp also declared that the barge operators planned to take return cargoes of Orange county products, including walnuts, beans and citrus fruits. A considerable saving in freight can be made by the Orange county ranchers by this plan, according to Knapp.

WEST COAST-WALKER

There are many diverse opinions as to whether a beginner in the motion picture industry should grow up, artistically, under the supervision of one director, or should gain experience by working for various people, learning their methods of direction.

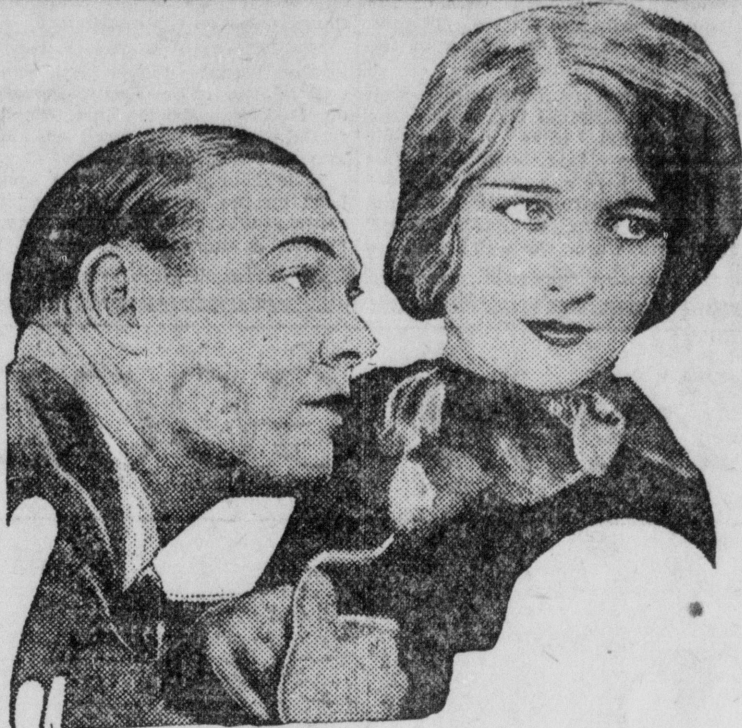

Sally O'Neil is a case in point. Sally entered pictures less than a year ago in Marshall Nellan's production of "Mike," and after a few weeks was given the part of "Mary" in "Sally, Irene and Mary." Her latest picture is Hobart Henley's version of "The Auction Block," coming to the West Coast-Walker theater. Charles Ray and Eleanor Boardman are featured.

It is interesting to note that Sally has never worked twice for any one director, but with her fourth screen appearance she is also working for a fourth director.

Sally's career has been a sensational one. Taken from school and without a day's experience, she was lifted to featured roles. Naturally, she hardly could understand what it was all about at first, but her pliant personality and Irish sense of humor prevailed, and made a success in her first part.

She was consequently signed to a long-term contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and a few weeks ago was selected as one of the Wampus Stars of 1926. She plays the role of "Bernice Lane" in "The Auction Block," which was adapted to the screen by Frederic and Fanny Hatton from the popular novel by Rex Beach.

WEST END THEATER

Hard luck followed both Norma Talmadge and her leading man, Eugene O'Brien, during the filming of her latest picture, "The Only Woman," now showing at the West End theater.

Many of the scenes, depicting a thrilling shipwreck in mid-ocean, called for unusually rigorous action on the part of the pair. As the picture will show, they are forced to cling to the frail railing of a yacht which is being tossed about like a feather while huge ocean waves sweep over them. The danger lay not only in being swept overboard, but also in exposure to the cold salt water.

All one night the couple battled a fierce squall fifty miles out from Los Angeles and finally were compelled to abandon the yacht, which was washed up on the rocks of Catalina Island and was fast disintegrating.

As a result of being soaked to the skin both Norma and O'Brien caught severe colds, as well as other members of the company of sixty which participated in the scenes. Eugene was threatened with pneumonia, and it was necessary to postpone the filming of the picture for a week, pending his recovery.

YOST THEATER.

"So This Is Arizona?" is the title of the next rollicking comedy to be presented by the Connell Comedians at the Yost theater Sunday and Monday. This production is the first western comedy that these popular players have offered and it is only by a chance meeting that Manager Robert Connell had with the author that he was able to secure the rights to the play.

The production runs along with a vim and dash that keeps the audience in an uproar from curtain to curtain. In fact, it is a comedy treat that a person can ill afford to miss. It equals a trip to Arizona where real cowboys still reign supreme.

A cast of exceptional merit plays in "Children of the Whirlwind," the Yost theater's film offering Sunday and Monday.

Marguerite De La Motte plays the female lead, the part of Maggie, the girl who is thrust into an environment of crime. Johnnie Walker, a favorite young player, has the role of Larry Brainerd, the young gang leader who sees the light after his release from prison, and who battles to "go right," just as formerly he fought to "stay crooked." Lionel Barrymore, than whom screen and stage knows no more gifted player, is cast as Joe Ellison, who learns, to his cost, that there is no honor among thieves.

YOST THEATER

Not in many weeks has there been presented to local picture-lovers a more adequate, more colorful, more appropriately pictorial and more generally satisfying entertainment than Herbert Brenon's vivid picturization of George M. Cohan's big Broadway comedy success, "The Song and Dance Man." The picture, which closes at the Yost theater tonight, faithfully reproduces the theater life of New York, from its cheap song-and-dance acts to the regal magnificence of the glorified musical comedies.

Tom Moore has the title role originally made famous in the stage version by Mr. Cohan—that of a typical small-time vaudeville troupier, who considers himself the greatest song and dance man in the world. Moore plays the character with precisely the right mixture of conceit, comedy and pathos, and holds the sympathetic interest of the audience throughout. Bessie Love—wide of eye, slim of form and elfin in every movement—brings both charm and talent to the part of the little dancer, who Charles-tions her way to musical comedy fame. Harrison Ford adds to his laurels with his very finished performance of the rich artist, who falls in love with the diminutive actress.

"KERNELS" BY THE COLONEL

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 30.—"The towns of Webster county are increasing in population every year, but the county has no more population than it had 20 years ago," said Circuit Judge N. B. Hunt, here today.

And here's one from the Register: The invitations include the information that dancing will begin at 8:30 o'clock with automobiles at 1 o'clock a. m." At that, we've seen a lot of Fords that could do the Charleston.

Weather experts throughout the country have announced that Monday will break bright and clear, indicating that an unusual large vote will doubtless be cast in the election of president of the Bankers club.

More than 1613 ballots have been prepared and election officers, selected among the trustees at the county jail have received their instructions. Checkers used in the games under the Tree of Knowledge, Birch park, will be used as counters and voters have been asked to line up on the muddy side of the City Water works.

J. McGoofus, McWhistle, wine taster, stated today that arrangements for the election were completed in every way and that in his opinion, plans for the automobile show would in no way hinder the voting, as the election was only for the STANDING army.

A brazen attempt on the part of indignant members of the Tree of Knowledge association to halt the election by getting out an injunction, on the grounds that several candidates were running only for the honor and not for the money the job paid, has been frustrated, J. M. M. said today. A new set of rubber dominoes were promised the association to "lay off" until after Monday.

"Only a sudden flood or permanent death can now stop the election," McWhistle said today, as he left his office on the fourth floor of the city hall building.

Pete Pennyantis, leading candidate, is to stage a political love feast at his home at 8796 West Main street tonight. City Marshal Rogers has been asked to send 94 officers as ticket takers. Pennyantis has promised that he will not solicit the votes of any of the officers.

City Marshal Rogers said today he had had several complaints from pool hall proprietors since he made his edict that loafing in these places must stop. How remarkable!

BUSTER KEATON HURT
ACTING—Headline in Los Angeles paper. Yes, and Buster is not the only one, either.

Here's one of the latest wise cracks taken at California by an Eastern paper—"The papers say that California is having real cold weather. But you know how Californians are—they'll say they have a warmer zero than we have."

This one is reported from North Main street. A truck passed up the street bearing a sign: "Here goes another—" naming a well-known radio receiver. In the truck was a garbage can.

Today's booby prize goes to the member of the Lion's club, who, in answering a questionnaire on Abraham Lincoln, wrote that "Honest Abe" was assassinated by Bob Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Chewning and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferrin, of La Habra.

Charles Kauffman and family, of Santa Ana were Sunday visitors at the Walter Kauffman home.

The F. A. Curtis family and the M. Harnans family, of Los Angeles, spent the week-end here. They had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gray, of Riverside.

Mrs. K. F. Nereido was a Sunday visitor to her sons in Los Angeles. She returned Monday.

Mrs. A. H. Dunlap, of Fullerton, spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. W. A. Smith. Mrs. Dunlap was making her last visit to the island before going north to join her husband in San Francisco. The family will live in that city.

The John DeLands, of Pico, spent Wednesday in their beach home. They were accompanied by friends from the east, Mr. and Mrs. Milo Thomas, of Corona, Ind. The latter are spending the winter with their son, Charles Thomas, of Pico, and friends in that locality. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, also accompanied the party.

An informal dinner party was held at the home of the W. A. Smiths on Sunday, when the following persons partook of a lobster feast: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Macneil and three children and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Holsington, of Whittier; Maurice C. Waugh, of Anaheim; and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Fields, of La Habra. Mr. Macneil is a realtor of Whittier and Mr. Holsington is in the city treasurer.

The D. F. Axelsons, of the Axelson Machine company, Los Angeles, entertained a party of friends at their attractive new home on the bay front over the past week-end.

Miss Caroline Balfe, one of the five Balfe sisters spending the winter on the island, is suffering from cataracts that have formed on both her eyes, and which will necessitate an operation in the near future. Four of the Balfe sisters are osteopaths. They alternate between Balboa island and their cottage at Fawnskin, Big Bear lake. This is the winter they are on the island.

Miss Iola Cosbey, of Pasadena, has been in the beach home of Miss Ottilie Stocke for the past two weeks and will remain for two more. She is remaining here for the purpose of taking the milk diet. She was joined this week by an aunt from Cincinnati, Mrs. Cora Meier, who has recently come to this coast. The latter is making her headquarters at Alhambra.

The W. H. Brooks and the Walter Brooks started for Eugene, Ore., this week. The Walter Brooks will locate at Cottage Grove, near Eugene, where other members of the Brooks family are settled. The W. H. Brooks expect to return to the island later.

Dr. Helen Cunningham, well known on Channel Isle, where the Cunninghams have a summer home, is now in a hospital in Los Angeles, where she recently underwent an operation. Her husband, Dr. F. L. Cunningham, and their two sons were week-end visitors to the island. Mrs. E. W. Adams, active in club circles in Pasadena, takes advantage of every opportunity of staying a few days in the handsome beach home on the division of Balboa island known as Channel Isle, which the Adams built last year.

The E. L. Cossairts, of Orange, the S. A. Parishes, of Los Angeles and the Henry Millars, of the same city, were week-end visitors to their homes on Channel Isle.

Mrs. Florence McCoy, a teacher in the Orange schools, and who is one of the more recent investors on Balboa island, entertained a friend over the past week-end, Miss Martha Ross, of Los Angeles.

Miss Emma Hardy, well known both on the island, where her parents reside, and in Santa Ana, is having a successful season at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, where she is studying violin this winter. She is heard quite frequently in radio programs given in the Ohio city.

If you are one of the unfortunates whose credit rating at our office is such that we are forced to report you to the merchants of this and other cities as "slow pay" or "poor pay" and you are dissatisfied with this rating, as you should be, come to our office, ask for our manager, and "lay your cards on the table." Some people we have been able to help regain the peace of mind that comes with a good credit rating. This we consider part of our work. Your honesty of purpose, as evidenced by your visit, is much. If you are prepared to back this with intelligent budgeting, and other common sense measures that our experience will place at your disposal, the situation is far from hopeless.

ROADSTER WILL BE ONLY MODEL CHRYSLER HERE

A roadster model of the new Chrysler six is the only car in the new line available for the auto show here, according to a statement made today by Paul Clark, manager of Hancock Brothers, Santa Ana distributors of the Chrysler line.

Discussing the new Chrysler Imperial line, featuring a 90-horsepower, six-cylinder car, capable of making 80 miles an hour, Clark said:

"The design of the chassis is conventional and does not depart from the general layout of the present six, introduced exactly two years ago. Both these models, as well as the four cylinder car, will comprise the line."

"While the salient feature of the new car is its high speed, it required extensive engine research to combine this factor with good low speed operation and hill climbing power, without sacrificing any of these qualities. A new method of counterbalancing and a special type of piston have contributed largely to the unusually high output of the seven bearing 3 1/2 by 5 inch 'L' head engine, developing 82 brake hp. at 3000 r.p.m."

"Rubber plays an important role in the makeup of the 'Imperial' chassis. To secure quietest operation and to minimize chassis lubrication, the springs are carried in shock insulated rubber blocks instead of the conventional axle bolt method. No metallic contact is formed between the rear supports of the engine and the frame, the greater portion of the engine weight being taken in special rubber mountings, thus minimizing the transmission of engine noises to the frame and body. The usual method of employing rubber hose to complete the hydraulic four-wheel brake system is adopted and follows closely the layout on the smaller six."

"Six body styles are offered. A roadster, phaeton and sedan, on an 120-inch wheelbase chassis and a four passenger coupe, seven passenger sedan and Berlina on an 127-inch wheelbase. Standard tire size for all models is 32 by 6-20 in., mounted on artillery wheels, except for the roadster, which has wire wheels as regular equipment. One piece full crown-ed fenders are a special feature of the new car."

"Much of the rakish appearance, which the bodies present, must be credited to the radiator and the hood design. The radiator shell has the general Chrysler appearance, although the deep flutes tapering back along the cowl to just below the windshield give the car a totally different aspect. This design blends well with the moulding running from the radiator around the bodies giving a deep belt effect and harmonizing with the low roof lines.

"The unit power plant is supported in the frame at four points, the two feet cast on the timing chain cover being bolted to a heavy pressed steel cross member, which also carries the radiator. At the rear, the engine is mounted on rubber blocks, held in place in a metal fitting, attached to a steel cross member, the latter completely encircling the clutch housing. This cross member is assembled in place before the engine is set into the frame and is bolted at its ends to gusset plates on the frame. With this type of construction, the rear of the engine is relieved of any frame weaving and also simplifies the removal of the power plant when necessary."

LAGUNA BEACH

LAGUNA BEACH, Feb. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pitzel are the proud possessors of a new son, born in an Anaheim hospital February 8. The baby, born in a Caesarian operation, weighed five and a half pounds. He has been named Roger David Pitzel in honor of old friends of the family. Mrs. Pitzel, who has lived in Laguna Beach for many years, is known to half the town as "Bobby."

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stromerson February 5. The new baby has been named Walter Jr. He weighed eight and a half pounds at birth. His birth will be of interest to many Santa Ana people as his grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Abe Johnson, pioneers of this part of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Ferris have returned to Laguna Beach after a three months' trip in eastern states. Mr. and Mrs. Ferris were residents of Hastings, Neb., before coming to California. Mr. Ferris was the head of the gas and power company in Hastings. The travelers say that California looks good to them after a winter spent with the mud chains constantly in use and the car slipping and sliding over the streets.

BALBOA ISLAND

BALBOA ISLAND, Feb. 13.—Mrs. H. Chapman and Mrs. T. Slee, of Los Angeles, and their children are spending two weeks in the Gwyn cottage on the north bay front. Mrs. Bernard Eldredge was called to Petaluma recently because of the serious illness of an uncle. She is expected to return to her home here in a few days.

A number of Kansas visitors have been callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hood the last few days. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Russ, of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Garsline, of Adalanto; Mr. and Mrs. Gutherill, of Fullerton; A. E. Blake, of Hollywood, and F. G. Boles, from Liberal, Kans., who is spending some time in California. The latter expects to return next fall with his family and make California his home. The latest of the Kansas contingent to visit the Hoods was Mrs. Lilly Smith, who is now located in Long Beach.

Mrs. C. L. Brown, of Los Angeles, visited her parents, the C. C. Hoods, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Veghte, of Pasadena, have been making a short stay here. They were joined over the week-end by their daughters, the Misses Helen, Adeline and Lois Veghte, and their son, Edwin Augustus, and a friend, G. Anton Pohlman.

PRODUCTION OF CORD TIRES IS COMMENCED BY LOCAL COMPANY

New Enterprise Here Fully Financed and Operated by Santa Ana Men

THREE SIZES NOW ARE BEING MADE

Will Increase Production To 100 Casings Per Day When Demand Is Greater

Manufacture of the Master Cord tire definitely was under way in Santa Ana today, with Santa Ana men back of the enterprise and with the project fully financed. The enterprise is being operated under the name of the Orange County Tire Manufacturing company, and is located at 903 East Fourth street.

John Kettler, William Waller, Thomas L. Nichols, H. H. Kelly, John Hay, William Pennock and other Santa Ana men compose the company. Pennock, formerly Hood tire distributor here, will be acting as identified with the sales organization.

Manufacturing under the Wayway process, the company is at the time employing three men and producing 10 tires a day. The sizes are 30x3 1-2, 32x4 and 32x4 1-2, and moulds have been ordered for 28x4.40, 32x4 1-2 and 32x5. As business increases, the daily production will be increased, the plant being equipped for 100 tires a day.

Pennock pointed out today that since the process employed here has made possible the manufacture of high grade cord tires, with only a small fraction of the equipment usually employed, the company has been able to establish what it terms a "neighborhood tire factory" for the manufacture of tires for the community.

By the process we are using here, the cord fabric from which the tire is built, is manufactured so the plant serves as a textile plant as well as a tire factory," Pennock said.

"The process in common use today begins by weaving the cotton cord into cloth and after it has become cloth it is rubberized and then cut into bias strips, ready for building into the tire. By this process, there is employed, first, a weaving loom, for weaving the cloth; second, a 15-ton machine, called a calendar, for rubberizing the cloth; and, third, a large machine, called a bias cutter, for cutting the rubberized cloth into bias strips ready for the tire. These three machines weigh about 35 tons.

"The Wayway process begins by rubberizing the individual strand of cotton cord before it becomes cloth. By this method, the rubberizing is done with a small machine, which

Serving with Distinction

PACKARD has served the first families everywhere for more than a generation.

Packard reputation, like Packard beauty, comfort and distinction, is a heritage from a long line of fine cars—each built for those who asked no compromise with price.

The new series Packard Six is a worthy descendant of the cars which made the name "Packard" a hall-mark of motor car excellence and good taste the world around.

Yet the Packard Six of today is not an extravagant nor even an expensive car. For example the five-passenger sedan is $2975 in California and may be purchased on a business-like monthly payment plan.

There is now no reason why additional thousands should not have Packard cars standing before their doors—ready to serve with both distinction and economy.

The Packard Six may be had in nine beautiful and distinguished body types, four open and five enclosed

London Bars 4-Wheel Auto Brakes

Four-wheel brakes are prohibited on motor buses and taxicabs in London by the commissioner of police, according to advice received by the U. S. department of commerce.

The commissioner says: "The matter of four-wheel brakes recently has received the commissioner's attention as licensing authority and, after consultation with his technical advisors, he has decided that the present time is not opportune for the introduction of such brakes on licensed public carriages."

MOTOR TRADES BODY TO URGE AIR CLUB HERE

The Orange County Automobile Trades association will initiate a movement to create an air club in Santa Ana as an earnest of its appreciation of Eddie Martin and his maintenance of an airport at the foot of South Main street, it was announced today by W. G. McConnell, president of the association.

"Martin has established quite a plant at his airport and is promoting interest in aviation by conducting a school of aviation and making planes available for rides by the general public," the president said. "The aviator has been continuing his operations there without any particular encouragement by Santa Ana organizations and we feel it is time for organization here of an air club."

"Maintenance of an airport is of considerable value to the city and by proper operation and encouragement on the part of Santa Ana the port could be developed into a big asset and made the landing field for passenger, mail and private planes."

The association has passed resolutions as follows:

"Whereas, Santa Ana is ideally located on the direct air route from Los Angeles to San Diego and the topographical conditions south of the city of Santa Ana are such that an adequate airport can be established; and

"Whereas, Eddie Martin has already established an airport south of Santa Ana and has been conducting a school of instruction at said point for some time; and

"Whereas, the Orange County Automobile Trades association realizes that future transportation will in a great measure be carried on in the air; and

"Whereas, the association is interested in all mechanical engineering with reference to the automotive industry; and

"Whereas, it is the desire of the members of the association to establish an airport at Santa Ana and create more interest in aviation;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved:

PLAN TO PLACE STOP SIGNS AT DANGERPOINTS

Survey Is Being Made of Traffic Conditions on All Santa Ana Streets

Stanley Goode, street commissioner on the city council, and Nat H. Neff, city engineer, are contemplating investigations of traffic conditions in the city with a view to institute boulevard stops at intersections that are indicated as dangerous by accidents.

A complete survey of the city has been made by the two city officials and a map has been drawn, showing all of the street intersections in the city, and now is on file in the office of the engineer.

Accident reports, filed in the office of the city marshal, in the 13 months ended February 1, 1926, have been checked, and points at which accidents have occurred have been indicated on the map by red-headed pins. With the markings, it requires but a glance at the map to clearly point out the intersections where mishaps have happened.

The investigation has disclosed that the greatest number of accidents in the last year occurred on Main and Fourth streets. In the period, the maximum number of accidents happening at any one intersection was four, the points having this number being First and Main, Tenth and Main, Third and Broadway and Fourth and Ross streets.

Engineer Neff said today that before the map finally is completed, he would check up with the two automobile clubs in an effort to get more information. He pointed out that frequently accident reports are made to the clubs that are not filed with the city police. According to police reports, 124 automobile accidents occurred in the city.

The officials intimated that it is their purpose to place boulevard stops at intersections on Fourth and Main streets and at other intersections that are considered dangerous points.

Visalia Man Is Given Orange Job

ORANGE, Feb. 13.—Neely's dry goods store has retained E. R. Cerny, an experienced department store man, to act as assistant manager. Mr. Cerny has moved with his wife to Orange and is now actively engaged in his work at Neely's.

Formerly with Wineman's department store in Fillmore and also with experience in Marshalltown, Iowa, Mr. Cerny is considered very capable by Mr. Neely.

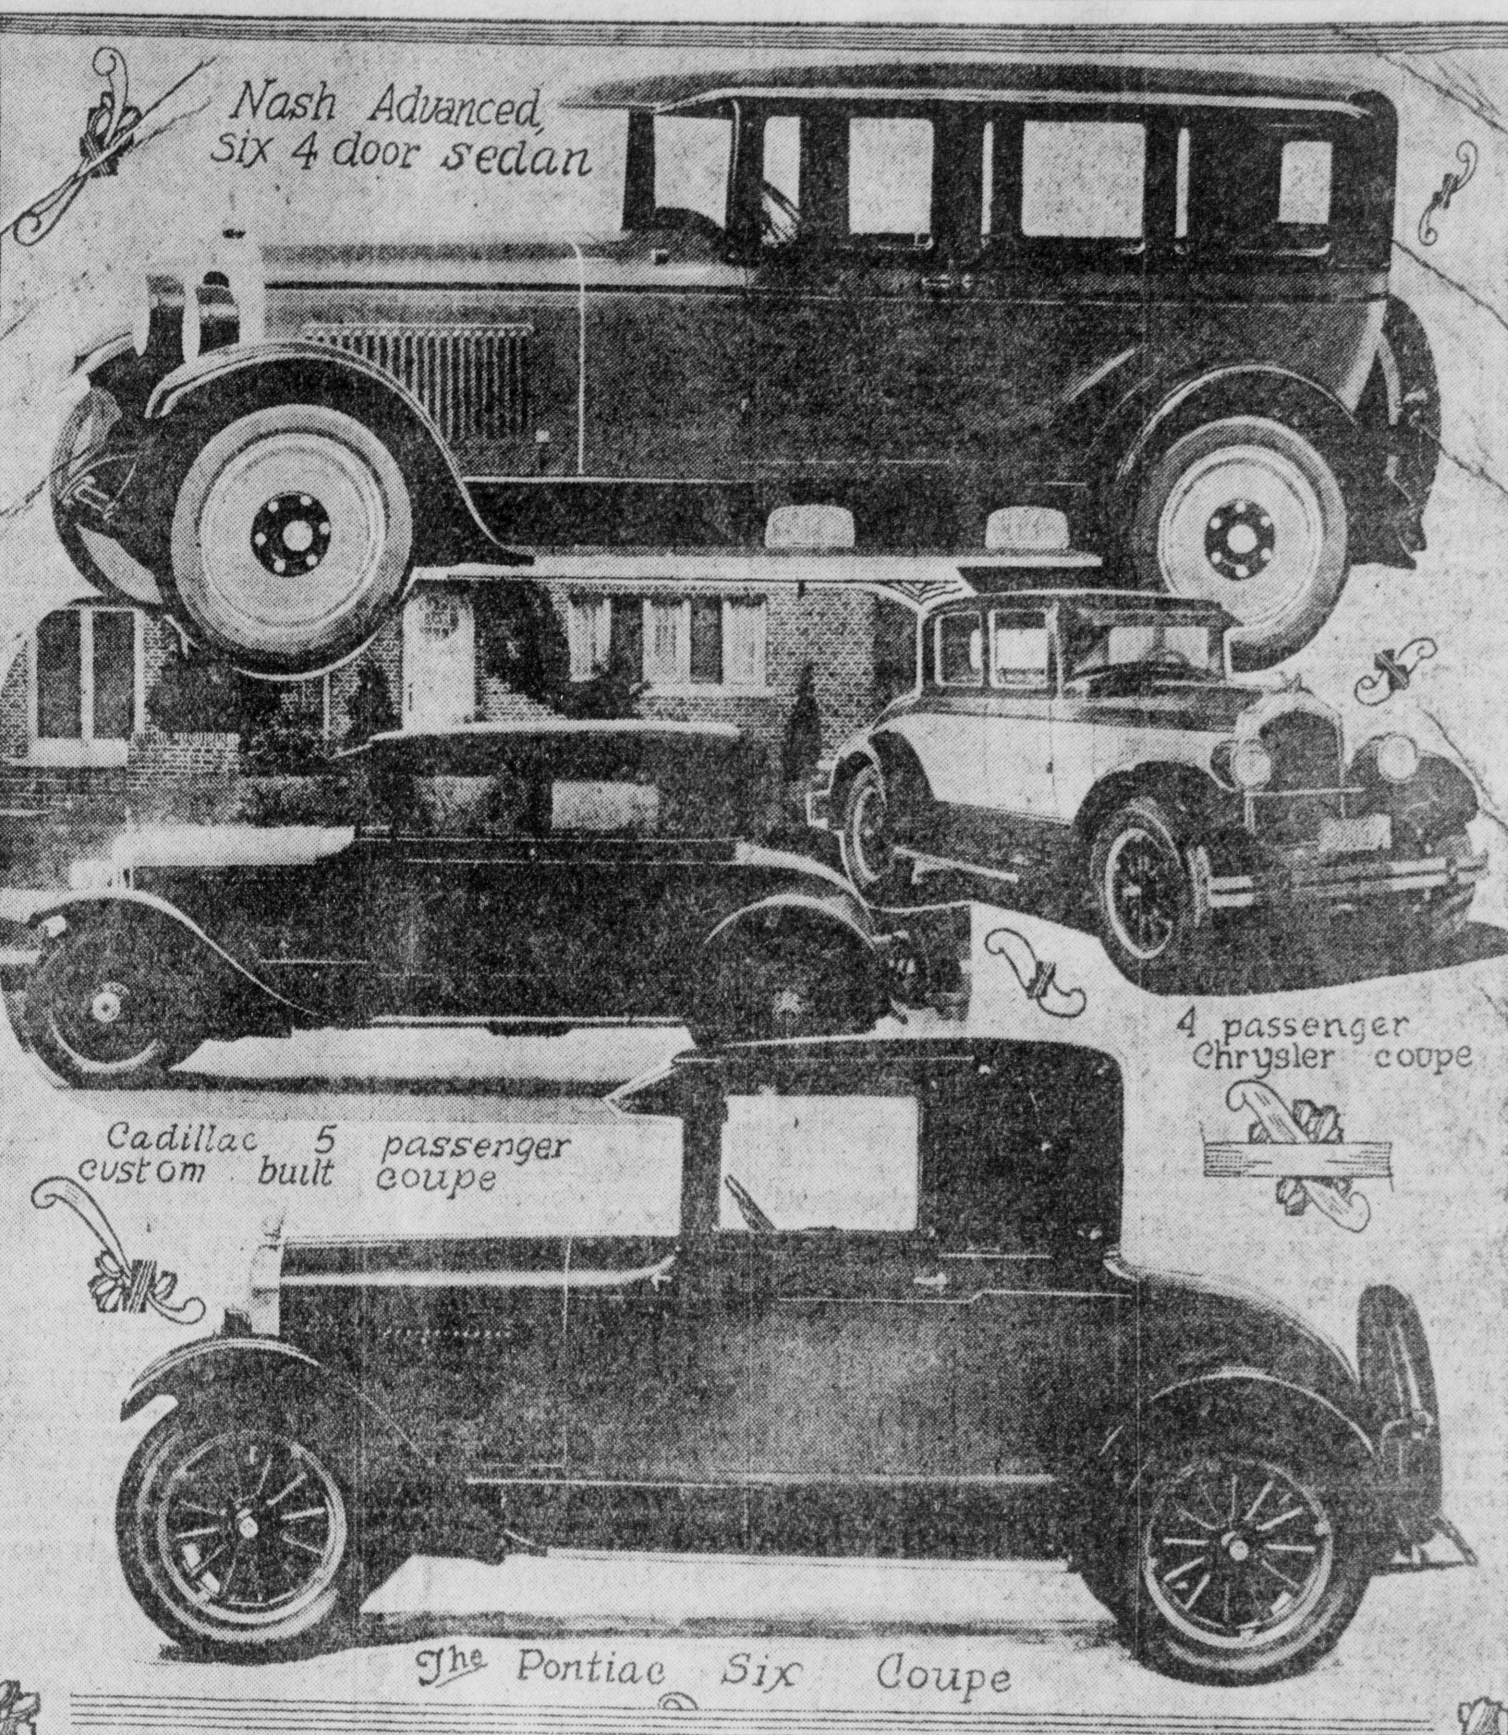

The most persuasive reason, according to Mr. Cerny, for his location in Orange, is the ideal climatic conditions.

That the Orange County Automobile Trades association put forth its best endeavors for the formation of an air club at Santa Ana, California.

The bag-pipe, which was threatened for a while last spring when an American jazz orchestra introduced the saxophone to Scotland, has come back into its own.

There were once three species of pumpkins and squashes; now there are exactly 67 named varieties recognized by horticulturists.

FEW OF LATE CREATIONS OF MOTOR WORLD TO BE EXHIBITED AT ORANGE COUNTY MOTOR SHOW

"Look 'em over and weep," Mr. and Mrs. Motorist. "Hain't" they beauties. They are merely examples of what you may expect to see at the Second Annual Orange County Automobile Show Beautiful, which opened here last night for an eight-day run, not including Sunday. Two of these models are on exhibition and the third will be displayed probably Monday. The Pontiac Six coupe is not here yet, but the Cadillac Garage company has been assured that the coupe or some other model of the new Oakland factory product will be here by that time. Hancock Brothers are showing a line of Chrysler roadsters, but later may have a model of the coupe shown here.

Hart Leases Tire Shop In Santa Ana

Fred Hart, formerly in the tire business in Orange, has leased the vulcanizing and repair section of the Jack Olivari tire shop, First and Main street, Santa Ana.

Powdered coal is converted into liquid fuel by heating to a high temperature in an atmosphere of hydrogen under great pressure.

MEMBERSHIP IN CLUB VAST HELP

Miss Lydia Fisher, one of the Santa Ana representatives of the National Automobile club, on a recent trip to Santa Barbara, proved the value of membership in the club and the convenience of the tow car service offered by the organization, according to her declarations here today.

Her car was towed three different times in two days by club garages, and tow service was used for the fourth time on the day following her return to Santa Ana.

Miss Fisher's series of difficulties started with ignition trouble near Summerland and it was necessary for her to call for club service to get her car to a garage. A little later a skid near Ventura resulted in a broken axle and her car was towed into that city, where she remained overnight while the repair was being made. Shortly after leaving Ventura the next day, her auto went dead near Oxnard and again the club service was requisitioned and repairs were made at Oxnard. Ignition trouble developed after she reached home and again she called on the club for a tow car.

"My membership in the club saved me at least $20 for tow service," the fair driver said.

Ford Road Show Will Visit Here February 26, 27

The Ford road show, which left Los Angeles January 19 for a tour of Southern California cities, will be in Santa Ana on February 26 and 27, according to an announcement made today by Geo. Dunton, local dealer.

It is declared to be one of the greatest exhibition of automobiles, trucks, tractors, farm, industrial and commercial equipment ever organized in a traveling unit.

"The show is unique in that a large number of the motorized units in the caravan operate under their own power," Dunton said. "The average traveling time is eight miles an hour."

"To enliven the night activities, a spectacular electrical display, featuring a 45,000,000 candlepower searchlight, capable of making a beam of light that can be seen for 50 miles, and many colored lighting effects, are operated."

Increase Noted In Violation of Automobile Laws

Violations of the motor vehicle act were shown today to have increased 14 per cent last year over 1924, in figures released by Will H. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles.

During the year, infractions of the law brought grief to 76,768 persons. This number faced California courts and received fines, jail sentences or reprimands, compared with 67,256 for the year previous.

Characterizing the figures as a "disgrace to the motorists of California and a sad reflection on the up-building influences of civilization," Marsh recommended jail sentences for speeders and reckless drivers, heavier fines for milder types of violations and the establishment of a strong force of state police as among means of meeting the situation. He also advised a continuance of campaigns designed to educate the public to the necessity of combating the craze for speed.

"The increase in the number of machines, which is only about three per cent, does not justify this increase in violations," he said.

Speeding and reckless driving were responsible for 49,830 violations or nearly two-thirds of the total. Other violations were divided as follows:

Rules of the road, 12,078; bad lights, 6402; violations of plate rules, 1353; open mufflers, 3440; driving without license, 1455; miscellaneous, 2202.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW BENEFIT TO BUYER

"Too many persons look on an automobile show, such as the one in Santa Ana, as purely a dealer's benefit," said Earl L. Matthews, one of the show directors. "As a matter of fact, the automobile owner and prospective owner derives greater benefits from the exhibit than the exhibitors."

"An automobile show gives the owner and the prospective buyer an opportunity to keep step with the development of the automobile industry that could not be secured through any other medium. The man who owns an automobile is given the opportunity to secure information that will increase the efficiency of his car through the proper care of its mechanism."

"For the prospective owner, the exhibit is valuable in that it provides a point of contact between him and the dealers. Every man knows the price of a car that he can afford to purchase. With all automobiles sold in the county on display, Mr. Prospective Owner can choose his class car, inspect all machines in that class, form his comparisons and when he leaves the exhibition tent will have a pretty definite idea of the machine he intends purchasing."

"Automobile owners and prospective owners, however, are not the only ones to benefit by an exhibit such as is to be staged in Santa Ana. The radio fan also will derive untold benefits. There are many who are not acquainted with the fact that an ordinary storage battery can be used efficiently with a radio set."

"The Orange County Ignition works will feature radio efficiency in their exhibit along with the All-Rubber Willard battery for automobiles. An expert will be in attendance at the booth to give complete information on securing the maximum of efficiency from the radio set and will give this information without cost to the patrons of the show."

STORM BRAVED BY MANY AUTO FANS ON FIRST NIGHT OF SHOW

Many Latest Creations of Automotive World Are Shown Here First Time

22 DEALERS HAVE CARS ON DISPLAY

Throngs Admire Paige 4-Door, 5-Passenger Sedan In Initial Appearance

By HORACE FINE
Automobile Editor of Register

Progress made in the last year by the automobile industry is reflected in many ways in the exhibits at the Second Annual Orange County Automobile Show Beautiful, which opened here last night.

Many surprises were in store for both the exhibitors and the visitors, for the exhibitors were surprised by the large number attending in face of the hard rain of the late afternoon and during the show hours, and the visitors were surprised by the magnificent showing of automobiles and the beautiful decorations of the interior.

Several hundred men and women braved the storm to go to the tent to give the beauties of motordom the once over, and none were disappointed, for the exhibits in every way met their expectations. It is true that some of the exhibits were not complete because of the fact that some of the exhibitors did not wish to expose their cars to the elements, but these were very few in number. It was expected that all cars would be in allotted spaces for showing tonight.

A number of models are being shown here for the first time and one model is being exhibited for the first time in California. The latter is the Paige four-door, five-passenger sedan and it was admired by throngs last night.

Other cars being given their first display in Santa Ana are the Huppmobile eight sedan, Nash five-passenger Advance sedan, the Nash four-passenger Advance roadster and the Chevrolet landau.

There seems to be something running through the entire show that reflects cordiality to the person visiting in any of the booths.

Program Well Received

The club orchestra, a Santa Ana organization, played during the evening and, at 9 o'clock, professional entertainers put on a program. Earle's Midgits, three sisters and a brother, captured the crowd with the dancing and singing. Other numbers were by Hamone Trant, well known to radio fans, who listen in on KNX, and the "Six Dancing Madcaps."

King Brothers will appear on the program tonight, presenting their clever "Spark Plug" act.

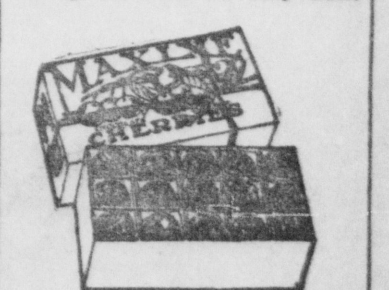

Because of the inclement weather and because it was thought there would be few visitors to the display last night, formal greetings to visitors were not presented. George Raymer, secretary of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, at 8 o'clock tonight, will offer official greetings to the visitors, and Manager Bob Cavenagh will have something to say.

Fred Medbery, of Medbery and Nathanson, Chandler and Cleveland dealers, today laid claim to making the first sale at the show. He says that T. F. Donohy signed an order last night for a Cleveland

It passes immediately on into another machine, similar to an ordinary machine shop lathe, which produces each ply of fabric, singly, and of any size required for any given size of tire. Thus, at no time is there a large piece of cloth to be handled, rubberized or cut, and the whole operation is done with a small equipment and in a very simple manner.

NOVEL SAND BLAST TEST SHOWS CORD TIRE STRENGTH GREATER THAN IRON

At the exhibit of Jess Goodman, Samson tire dealer, at the auto show, a comparative test between rubber and iron is being made that shows that rubber will withstand a sand blast better than iron. A sand blast is played equally on a heavy gauge metal shield and a Samson cord tire. The tire stands the gaff while the iron is completely cut away. The ordinary tire buyer probably would never expect to secure a tire of such tough tread compound that it would withstand the sand blast that eats through metal and stone.

MICHIGAN CORN INFECTED WITH EUROPEAN PEST

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 13.—

With the entire northeastern section of lower Michigan infected with European corn borer, state and federal forces are planning drastic control measures and a strict quarantine to prevent the pest working its way into the corn belt of the central west.

"Although a quarantine was maintained last season in a small area around Detroit, natural conditions allowed the pest to spread and practically double the infected area," said E. G. Brewer, U. S. department of agriculture field agent, in charge of the government's campaign against the pest in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

"We are hoping to establish a 'dead-line' at the Michigan-Indiana line to prevent the borer from reaching Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. Unless we are able to do this and it is not probable that we can do more than delay the spread—the borer will work its way into the section of the country depending on the corn crop for its prosperity. It is virtually impossible to grow corn in infested fields after the pest has a good start."

Included in the federal government's plan to stop spread of the infection, according to Brewer, are:

1. Strict quarantine of all roads and railroads with government agents to prevent shipping of corn on the cob from infected sections.
2. Compulsory burning of stubble of infected fields with a specially devised pressure oil burner.
3. Continued inspection of borders of quarantined areas with isolation of each section as soon as borers are found.
4. Work by government entomologists in an effort to find a parasite which will control the European borer.

Discovery of this parasite, Brewer said, is the only hope of eliminating the insect in the United States. A parasite is well developed in Europe and for this reason the borer has caused little difficulty there. There also is a parasite to control domestic borers, but nothing has been found which will kill the European borer in this country.

Burning stubble fields and quarantines are only effective in delaying the spread of the insect, which has been working its way westward from New England and Canada, according to Brewer. Authorities believe the Michigan infection, originated in Canada. Investigations have shown that the borer moth is carried for several miles by wind.

Vast Expansion and Advanced Equipment make New Prices Possible

The history of Dodge Brothers drastic price reductions is simple and brief.

A better and better product followed by greater and greater demand.

To meet that demand, an expansion of buildings and equipment involving an expenditure of more than $10,000,000.

Output vastly increased, with consequent reduction in the cost of materials and production.

Installation of advanced labor-saving and quality-increasing equipment. For instance, one giant steel-body press costing $10,000 replaces ten former presses costing $7,500 each, and does the work more efficiently.

Result: The finest line of vehicles in Dodge Brothers history at prices that seem incredible in view of Dodge Brothers traditional quality—

That seem more incredible still when considered in connection with improvements that include—

Rich and attractive new colors.

Smart and stylish new body lines.

Four dependable cylinders.

Absolute smoothness of engine operation.

Greater power, snap and elasticity.

And advanced steel body and windshield construction that afford exceptional driving vision at a time when clear vision and safety are paramount in the mind of every motorist.

REPORTS GIVEN ON NEED OF AID FOR CRIPPLES

Reasons why the Crippled Children's Relief association of Orange county, should receive aid from the county as well as from the Santa Ana Community chest were revealed in reports presented yesterday at the monthly meeting of the directors of the association held at the Elks club, Anaheim.

Harry D. Riley, president of the association, presided over the meeting, which was attended by representatives from different parts of the county. Among those present were Mrs. J. W. Price, Mrs. O. H. Renner, Mrs. W. T. Wallop, Miss Kate Rea, Miss Grace W. Bailey, Marshall L. Keeler, Carl F. Leonard, Mrs. Thomas L. McFadden, and others.

Reports On Activities

The various activities of the association during January were set forth in a report submitted by Mrs. Gertrude Crowell, superintendent, a trained expert, who, in addition to rendering personal service to afflicted children, supervises the field activities of the organization. Mrs. Crowell's report, giving detailed information of individual cases and treatment prescribed, shows that at present the association is taking care of not less than 24 patients included in which are several severe and distressing cases of malformation requiring long periods of convalescence, following surgical operation.

It also was brought out in the report that, to carry on follow-up treatments, the superintendent made 170 visits during the month. Bills presented for approval by the directors, running into several hundred dollars for a single month, were mostly for braces, artificial limbs, deformity appliances, supports, trusses and crutches, while others represented expenditures for glasses, clothing and other necessities.

Need For Funds Emphasized

The need for additional financial support to carry on the work of the association was emphasized with the presentation of a list of orthopedic appliances and braces required for the current month, aggregating $492, per quotations submitted by a Los Angeles firm, dealing in artificial limbs and appliances.

In discussing these requirements, calling for large outlays of money, it was suggested that proper representations be made to the county supervisors for financial assistance. It also was proposed that, inasmuch as the calls for aid are constantly increasing, many of them coming from Santa Ana and immediate surroundings, a request be submitted for participation in the 1927 Santa Ana-Tustin Community chest.

New Cases Found Daily

Discussing the work of the association, President Riley called attention to the fact that many distressing cases of malformed children have been found, and new ones are being reported from day to day, most of which, with scientific treatment and the care that is absolutely essential after surgical operation, can be restored to useful physically normal units, ready to take care of themselves.

In this connection, he took occasion to correct an erroneous impression to effect that the Los Angeles hospital for crippled children is looking after the needs of Orange county. While this institution has been handling Orange county cases in the past, today there are but four remaining cases in its care, he explained. He added that an institution located in Orange county is the proper place for the care of like cases where parents and guardians can co-operate best with those having restoration in charge.

How much is a Name Plate Worth?

STAR by exceptional value has built an enviable reputation for low cost transportation.

GARDNER WILL DISPLAY LATE CLOSED MODELS

Two of the most interesting cars at the Auto Show Beautiful are the brand new Gardner Imperial "S" Sedan and Cabriolet Deluxe, in the opinion of Harold O'Donnell, manager of Modern Motors company, Santa Ana.

"These cars are exact replicas of the attractive display of Gardner motor cars at the New York and Chicago auto shows, held last month," said O'Donnell, "and we were especially favored in being able to exhibit these models in Santa Ana for the first showing in Southern California."

"With appointments rarely, if ever, equalled by present day motor cars," continued O'Donnell, "we know that the Gardner exhibit will create unusual attention at the show. In addition to the models actually on display, we have demonstration cars on hand outside of the show for the free use of those interested in testing the driving possibilities of Gardner cars."

"For those who favor speed, the Gardner eight-in-line will give plenty of thrills at seventy-five miles an hour. But better than speed and acceleration is the Gardner economy of 16 to 18 miles to the gallon of gasoline, with the eight-in-line Lycoming motor."

"The high lights of the Gardner exhibit are distinction outside of ostentation, together with those other favored attributes of comfort, a deconomy, and, last but not least, a price within the reach of every good business man in Orange county."

Long Beach Petroleum Products Concern Has 14 Dealers in S. A.

Plans for an extensive program of expansion, which will total $160,000 and double the capacity of the company's refinery within the next 12 months, have just been announced by the MacMillan Petroleum company, of Long Beach.

As a part of this development, the MacMillan company, which operates one of the largest independent gasoline refineries in Southern California, already has launched a $25,000 advertising and exploitation campaign in Santa Ana and Long Beach.

The MacMillan plant, which now has 14 dealers in this city, is producing an average of 25,000 gallons of gasoline a day and by the end of the year this figure should be doubled, it is announced.

In addition to supplying an ever-increasing demand for its product in Southern California, the company also is shipping thousands of gallons of gasoline monthly to Idaho, Utah, Nevada and other western states. It has for this service its own privately leased tank cars, which are under the control and rigid inspection of the company at all times, thus insuring the gasoline reaching its destination in the same perfect condition as when it is shipped.

With an annual payroll of more than $200,000 and a total equipment investment in excess of $150,000, the company's gross production for the last year was more than $3,000,000.

The MacMillan company is not a new concern. It is an outgrowth of the MacMillan-Batterson company organized in June, 1923, by R. S. MacMillan, S. M. Batterson and J. H. MacMillan. Starting with a small 1500-barrel dehydrating plant at that time, the company has enjoyed a continuous growth until it is one of the seven largest remaining refineries out of 35 which were operating in Southern California in July, 1925.

Details of the company's expansion and exploitation program, which will ultimately carry the name and product of the company throughout the entire state, were

BRAKE SYSTEM IS FEATURE ON ALL REO CARS

"Each year, when the national automobile shows are held in New York and Chicago, startling developments in body and mechanical design are expected to come to light," says Joe Finley, Reo Sales and Service company, representative of the Reo Motor Car company in this city. Two of the latest Chrysler models are exhibited at the show here.

"Among mechanical developments attracting wide attention at the New York show and again at the Chicago show, and which will attract attention here, are the new Reo safety control, designed to give Reo passenger models 'split-second' braking in addition to an otherwise standard control."

"Split-second" braking is accomplished by an ultra-rapid application of brakes made possible when both service and emergency brakes are controlled by foot pedals. On the Reo this has been made easy for the driver accustomed to standard control by linking the service brake with the right pedal, as is customary; controlling the clutch with the left pedal, and linking the emergency brake with the left pedal in such a manner that it is applied after the pedal completes the de-clutching process.

"But in addition, the Reo emergency brake is linked with a hand lever, located at the left of the driver in a position which does not hinder entrance or exit through the left front door. Now the emergency hand lever can be used for parking."

explained to more than 100 independent gasoline service station operators at a dinner banquet at the Imperial inn, Long Beach, last night. Several dealers from Santa Ana were in attendance.

for negotiating long grades where the driver wishes to leave his clutch engaged, or, if the driver prefers, it can be used as the sole emergency brake by removing the linkage between the clutch pedal and the emergency brake.

"All of the Reo passenger models, in addition to having the new safety control now have standard S. A. E. gear shift. The new sedan which was the feature of both the New York and Chicago exhibits, has longer and lower lines, a lengthened hood, a permanent visor integral with the top of the car, and a number of additional features adding materially to its appearance and desirability."

STUDEBAKER SPORT MODEL IS POPULAR

According to Harry Riley, county distributor, his exhibit of the Studebaker Big Six roadster, at the show here, drew considerable attention last night and this afternoon.

"The smart performance of this sport roadster is matched by smart appearance," Riley said. "The body is richly lacquered in two tones of gray—a dark castle gray on the rear deck in pleasing contrast with the lighter aurora gray over the rest of the body. Upholstery is in blue. Wheels are natural wood finish. The collapsible top, with natural wood bows, is nickel trimmed. The rear curtain can be rolled up if desired, when top is raised."

Three can be seated comfortably in the broad cushioned main seat. Room for two additional passengers is provided in the rumble seat, which folds out of the rear deck. The back and arms of the rumble and the seat proper are upholstered in leather. Maximum riding comfort is assured by full size balloon tires.

Board To Consider Winterburn Successor Soon

DISCUSSION OF NEW COACH SET FOR NEXT MEET

Ernie Nevers, Cuddeback, Harry Shipke Suggested As Possible Candidates

Until the Santa Ana board of education holds its next meeting, February 23, no official consideration will be given the appointment of a successor to Charles ("Chuck") Winterburn, popular coach of the high school football team, who has accepted a position as assistant mentor of the Stanford university varsity eleven next year.

Winterburn has not filed his resignation with the board, but since he already has announced he will not be a candidate for reelection to the Poly faculty, his notice to leave the school's employment will not be necessary for the board to plunge into the arduous task of appointing his successor.

Winterburn, of course, will remain with the local athletic department until his contract expires in June. He will assume his duties at Stanford September 1. Alex Brownridge, president of the board of education, said today that no action could be taken officially until the trustees assemble a week from Tuesday, and that it was doubtful if any appointment was made for several weeks.

"We are most sorry to lose Winterburn," Brownridge stated, "but we realize, of course, that his new position is a fine promotion and we are glad for him. He more than made good here. We shall make every effort to obtain as his successor a man who can get the results he did. We have nobody in mind yet, but understand there are a number of fine coaches available who would welcome the opportunity of coming to Santa Ana."

Some football followers, impressed with the success of the Glenn Warner system which Coach Winterburn taught his players last fall, talked today of requesting the board to appoint a coach who knows that style of football and of football and who could begin with the high school team where Winterburn left off.

Ernie Nevers, Stanford's famous All-American fullback last season, was mentioned by several fans as a possibility. The ability of the board to obtain Nevers, however, was questioned by those "in the know." The giant linebacker would demand a salary beyond the means of the board. Anyway, he probably will be so occupied with professional baseball that he will make no effort to bother with football until the professional season get under way along in November.

Two other former Stanford players, under whom Winterburn was considered as not only a valuable material but also as probable avowed candidates for the post.

Harry Shipke, a Fullerton boy and a varsity tackle on Cardinal eleven for three seasons is known to be on the lookout for a coaching berth in some high school and some say he would like nothing better than to land a job at Santa Ana. Shipke played with the undefeated Olympic club squad last season. He also was an "S" man in basketball. His brother, Ted, was All-Coast end at Stanford.

Murray Cuddeback, former Card halfback and one of the greatest place kickers ever developed on the coast, also loomed as a possibility. Cuddeback has been looking around for a coaching position. It is understood. In addition to his ability as a football player, Cuddeback is a star baseball man, having played three years on the Stanford nine.

PAUL ELECTED PILOT OF POLY CINDERPATHERS

Howard ("Howy") Paul, holder of the Santa Ana high school broad jump record and one of the finest track and field athletes ever developed at the local institution, will captain the Poly cinderpathers this season. He was elected at a meeting of team members yesterday.

The diminutive trackster is expected to have the best year of his brilliant career. He has been working around the pits for several weeks, starting the railbirds with a leap of 21 feet, 5 inches in the annual inter-class meet Thursday afternoon. That mark is good enough to win first places in almost any interscholastic dual meet but it was just an ordinary performance for the little Santa Ana. Paul has leaped 22 feet, 11 inches. He took second in both the California state and Southern California prep meets last season.

In addition to his exceptional skill in the broad jump, Paul also is a speedy sprinter and a fast low hurdler. He is his teammates and should make an ideal skipper.

Poly's cinderpathers will get their first real competition of the 1926 season next Friday when a combined high school and junior college squad take on the Pomona college freshmen at Claremont. Coaches Walter Scott and Graham Harris will take along full squads, giving all their candidates a chance to show their ability.

The following day a large number of Poly athletes will travel to San Bernardino to compete in the annual track meet that is held in connection with the orange show there. The entries follow:

440 yard dash (novice): Velarde, Moffatt, Fairchild, Jacques, Stephenson, Goodman, Twist, Keeler, Avila.

440 yard dash (open): Bear, Paul, English, Twist, Velarde, Berry, Mile medley race: McKean, English, Bear, Paul, Twist, Velarde, Keeler, Mile run (novice): Berry, Velarde, Fairchild, Keeler, Winter, Moffatt, Avila.

S. A. COLLEGE FIVE IN ACTION TONIGHT

A chance to even score with the Riverside junior college cage squad will be offered the Santa Ana collegians tonight when the rivals clash at 8 o'clock on the Y. M. C. A. court here.

Lately, the Dons have been winning from every squad that has come their way even to the extent of knocking off Pasadena, conference leaders. Riverside is pressing Pasadena for the title.

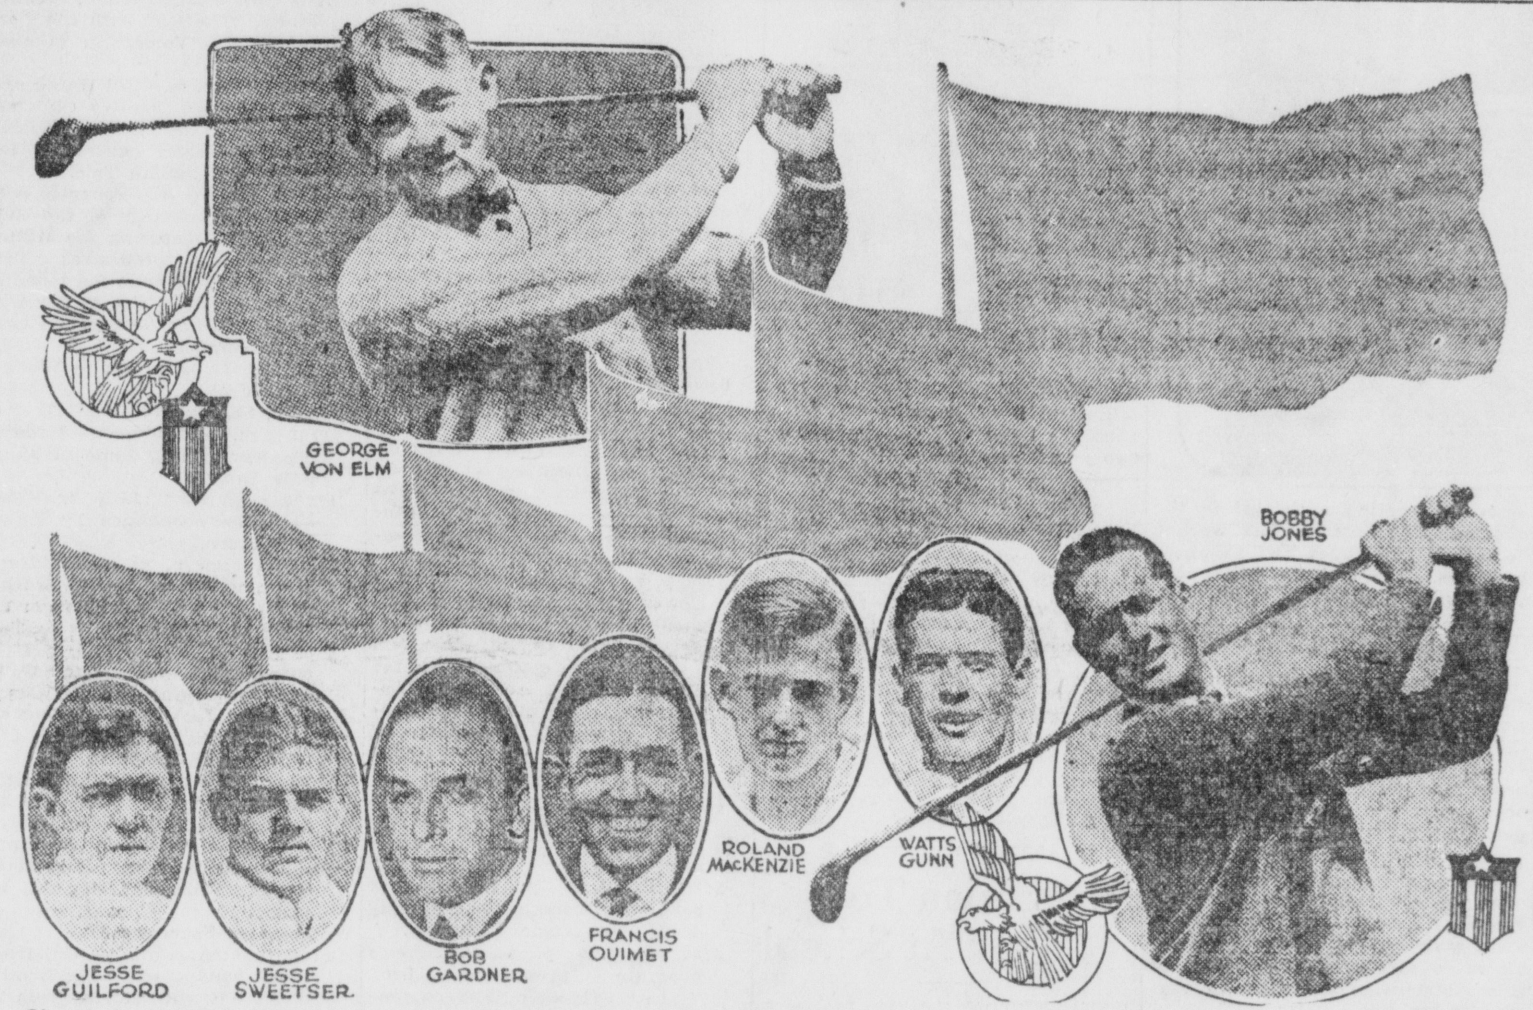

Everett Lutz, star of the Santa Ana-Pasadena game, will be at center for the Dons. Frank Labrucherie and James Smith will be at the forwards and Lawrence Kokx will get the nod for the guarding tasks.

More than 165,000 divorces were granted in the United States in 1925.

HERE'S AMERICA'S AMATEUR GOLF TEAM FOR WALKER MATCHES

Six of the amateur golfers selected by the United States Golf association to represent this country in the Walker cup matches, to be held in England this year, have already accepted. They are Captain Bob Gardner, Champion Bobby Jones, Watts Gunn, Roland Mackenzie, Jesse Sweetser and Francis Ouimet.

The two other stars named by the committee, Jesse Guilford and George Von Elm, have not as yet given a definite answer. Both are anxious to play against the Britons and will do so unless business prevents it. It is to be hoped Von Elm will make the trip as he is one of the best of the amateurs. Only recently he finished second to Harry Cooper in the California open.

GOLF

The dream of a great percentage of golfers is to learn to drive 300 and 325 yards. And, after watching professionals get out such long drives, wonder why they cannot get the long distance in their driving.

And yet, when it is all said and done, long driving really is not necessary in order to play good golf and stay in the lower 80's.

The average golf course presents barely more than two long holes of the 600-yard length. Most of them have but one such long hole.

The majority of holes run between 200 yards and 450 yards. Those figures indicate that an average drive of from 200 to 250 yards is sufficient and that too much time need not be spent trying to get longer drives.

On the average golf course hole a drive of around 175 yards, straight down the fairway, should get one around the links close to par.

In the 400-yard holes, two average drives of 175 or 200 yards and a mashie or clip to the green is all that is necessary.

In trying too long a drive, the dangers of hooking or slicing are too numerous to encounter. More strokes are wasted in trying to get the long drive than long driving really is worth.

When professionals shoot driving courses they play the cards—taking distance of each hole from either the card or sand box and regulating their drives accordingly.

Professionals play on many a strange course during the course of a year. If they tried long 300-yard drives on every course their scores would be embarrassing.

Their judge of distance, the ability to throttle down to a short drive of 175 or 250 yards, as the length of the hole may be, is what enables them to often shatter course records, even though it be their first time around that particular course.

Old followers of the game are convinced that shorter and straighter driving, with attention being placed to lengths of each hole, are of greater importance in the fight to beat Old Man Par than is attention spent on trying to outdrive the professional who gets 800 and over on the longer holes.

HELEN-SUZANNE NET MEETING SET FOR TUESDAY; DRAMATIC SPORT EVENT THRILLS FRANCE

CANNES, France, Feb. 13.—Keeping up her smashing game, Helen Wills, American tennis champion, today overwhelmed Saintomer Roy, France, at 6-0 and 6-0. The American champion played most brilliantly and showed her opponent no heart. She drove a savage smashing game across the net, winning the first set 28 to 15 and the second 24 to 6 point score.

The stands were almost filled for the match and the crowd gave Miss Wills an ovation when she left the courts.

Miss Lenglen also sped through another love match when she overcame Mary Cambridge, England, in straight sets.

Miss Wills also scored again in the doubles. Teamed with Mlle. Henrietta Contoslova, young French star, she defeated the British team, Mrs. Young and Miss Green, at 6-0 and 6-2.

Carpenters were busy this morning erecting temporary stands around the center court where Miss Wills and Suzanne Lenglen are expected to meet Tuesday morning.

Bright sunshine has done much to bring the courts back into shape and unless there is more rain they ought to be in perfect condition for the match.

Speculation as to the winner of the match is increasing as the hour approaches for one of the most dramatic sporting events of years.

Opinions vary but the majority of the players and the critics here believe that Miss Wills is too young and too inexperienced to win.

Robert James, Saratoga, N. Y., gives Lenglen the victory in straight sets with the loss of not more than four games.

Edmund Burke, professional at the Carlton club, picked Lenglen to win without the loss of a game, ranking her the fifth best player in the world after Tilden, Johnston, Richards and Borotra.

"If she had the strength, she could beat Tilden," he said.

Billy Evans Says

Pitcher Ernie Nevers
Major leaguers are wondering what success Ernie Nevers will have as pitcher for the St. Louis Browns. Nevers was a big star in baseball as well as on the gridiron. That means something when you take into consideration that his coach, Glenn Warner, who also developed Jim Thorpe, pronounces Nevers the greatest football player of all-time.

If Nevers makes good in big league circles he will kill off a jinx that has followed football-baseball stars for years. Mighty few of them have delivered in the majors.

As a matter of fact, college players, even those who didn't dabble in football, had a tough season of it in the American League in 1925.

Not one, with the possible exception of Pitcher Carroll, the Holy Cross star, got very far and he just about reached first base.

Even Carroll, who had won 48 out of 50 games as a college pitcher, found the going much different in the majors.

For several years college stars have not been such howling successes in the majors. In addition they have come mighty high, for most of them are good business men.

United Brethren Church Five Win

Santa Ana's United Brethren church basketball quintette defeated the Los Angeles United Brethren church five, 44 to 8, in a game at the "Y" gymnasium here. Scores: Los Angeles Pos. ### POLY 'C' FIVE CINCH LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

By ALFRED AULT
Santa Ana's crack class C (110-pound) basketball team today held the championship of this division of the Coast Preparatory league.

The only team that disputed Santa Ana's claims was Pasadena and the Millionaire midgets were subdued by an 8 to 4 score when the teams clashed in a curtain raiser to the varsity match at the Santa Ana "Y" gymnasium yesterday.

One more team, Alhambra, remains to be played but even a defeat at their hands would not effect Santa Ana's title.

The Santa Ana fleawrights looked like anything but league champions against Pasadena. They won because they weren't as bad as Pasadena. It was the worst exhibition that Coach Walter Scott's charges have shown this year and they were lucky to have tripped up the undefeated Pasadena cagers.

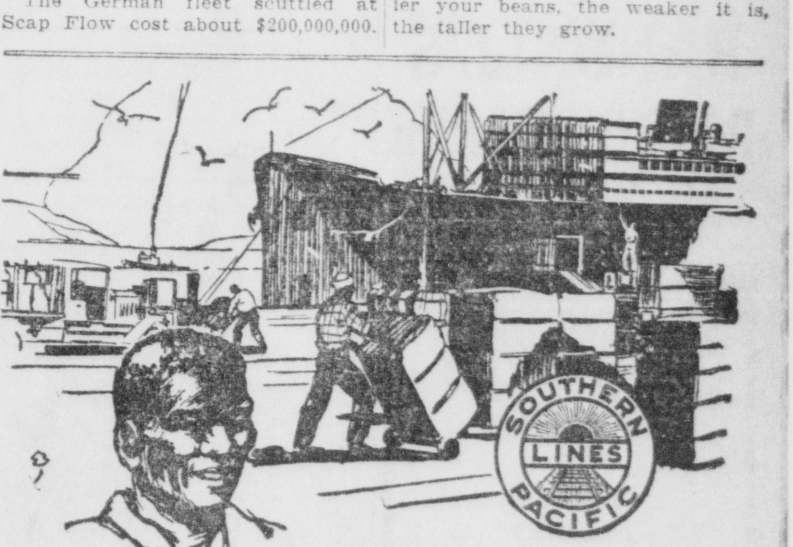

These and other remarks were being peppered at the "Cees" today. Even the players were not satisfied with their showing. The scare will have its effect in shaking up the overconfident midgets so they will be ready to do real business in the Southern California playoffs.

The lineup:
Santa Ana (8) (4) Pasadena Yonel (6) F. (12) Athens Schuchardt (6) F. (12) Arnold Bestly (6) C. (12) Anderson

Brown (6) G. (12) McGreggor Dixon (6) G. (12) Shinnough Substitutions: Pasadena—Faulstich for McGreggor.

IDEAL RADIO STUDIO IS BUILT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 13.—Station WJJD claims to have an ideal radio studio at its new quarters located at the Palmer House here.

The radio studio was planned right along with the rest of the great hotel and all possible improvements and conveniences were built into the suite of rooms which serve as a studio. It is said to be the first radio studio to be incorporated in the original plans of a large modern building.

There are two studio rooms in the suite which facilitate program changes and give radio entertainers an opportunity for rehearsals before they broadcast.

RADIO AIDS FARMERS

Heavy mail receipts from agricultural areas to stations broadcasting subjects of interest to farmers show that farmers are attaching more importance and dependence than ever to radio. Hundreds of testimonials to KOA, Denver, reveal that market price quotations help the farmer to make larger profits.

PAY ENTERTAINERS

Radio entertainers' jobs would be at a premium in the country if we follow the lead of England. Every owner of a receiving set in the British Isles must pay an annual license fee of 10 shillings. This is said to be distributed among the entertainers.

COIL BINDER

The best coil binder is made of a solution compound of a half ounce of collodion and an equal amount of Amyl acetate. Ordinary collodion causes only little more resistance, however.

What do you want to pay for a radio?

JUST as little as will buy you a really fine set. If you agree with us about that, what you want is an Atwater Kent Receiving Set with an Atwater Kent Radio Speaker. Come in. See and hear for yourself.

RELIGIOUS HEADS MEET

A priest, a rabbi and a Protestant minister broke bread together and gave short talks which were broadcast by station WAHG, Richmond Hill, N. Y. Left to right are pictured Mrs. W. W. Fitzhugh, Rabbi Alexander Lyons, Monsignor Belford, Dr. S. Parks Cadman and Eugene C. Adler. A consensus of opinion of the three religionists seems to be that a home is a home whether it is Catholic, Jewish or Protestant and that the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man are of the greatest importance.

"NICKEL IN SLOT" RADIO

Joseph Pinto of Philadelphia is shown operating a "nickel in the slot" radio machine which he has invented. The inventor has worked on this apparatus for 16 months. The set of five tubes can be operated on either house current or batteries. A red light announces the expiration of the time allowance, one minute before it is up.

HIGH-POWER STATIONS

A high-powered broadcasting station is being built at Frankfurt, Germany. This station will operate with the same power capacity as Königswusterhausen and Munich, 10 kilowatts, and will be a vast improvement on the present Frankfurt station.

FRANCE TAXES RADIOS

The French government has placed a tax on all radio receiving sets. The tax duties range from approximately 60 cents to $2.50 a year, depending upon the type of receiver. Strict enforcement is planned and evaders will be forced to pay 10 times the original tax cost for a license.

SOLO "DUETS"

Two organs, in two different studios, played a duet recently that was broadcast through station WLS, Chicago. By means of a "mixing board," one of the newest things in broadcasting stations, two separate organ concerts were brought together as a duet.

RECORDS MESSAGES

MECCA TRIPS FINANCED BY ENGLISH GOLD

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Bank of England, among its numerous tasks, is seeking, just now, to find the wherewithal to finance the pious pilgrimages of Mohammedans to Mecca.

This it does by flooding the Orient with gold sovereigns.

For the Mohammedans, whatever their attitude toward the British empire, have discovered in the course of several generations that the British gold sovereign is, of all the coins in the world, the most convenient for expenditures on a prolonged pilgrimage through unknown countries.

Recently, Amsterdam purchased $5,000,000 sovereigns from the Bank of England, for trans-shipment to Batavia, in the Dutch East Indies. These will be sold, at a small premium, to the Mohammedans in the Dutch East Indies, who will leave a trail of them behind, as they go to Mecca, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Singapore and other ports do a similar business, principally with the Bank of England.

Amsterdam finds it very easy to get gold sovereigns this year from the "Old Lady of Threadneedle street," because of the London rubber market's heavy purchases of Dutch rubber, which make London "owe" Amsterdam a very considerable amount of gold. Ordinarily, this would be taken in the form of bar gold, but with a thrifty eye on the forthcoming pilgrimages, the Dutch metropolis demands sovereigns and gets them.

Altogether the bank will scatter, through the East, about $1,000,000 worth of gold coins for the convenience of the followers of the prophet.

CYNTHIA GREY

Says: Dare Say "Love"

By CYNTHIA GREY

Rummaging through the stores the other day, I stopped for a moment of reflection over a display of "valentine gifts."

Gorgeous heart-shaped boxes filled with garters and vanity cases and strings of beads and little perfume flasks.

Over in the men's department were suspenders and socks and handkerchiefs packed in heart-shaped boxes.

I looked over a display of plain valentines and wondered where was the sentiment of yester year?

I failed to find one single valentine which said "I Love You," or "To My Sweetheart," or "My Darling."

The cartoon valentine seemed to be the favorite—not the vicious, malicious comic valentine of years ago which only wanted to wound someone sadly, but a wacky comic in tune with the jargon of the age and refusing to show such a silly thing as sentiment.

"To the Candy Kid," read one which pictured a sheik proffering his sweetie a box of candy.

"You're the Berries, I'll Tell the World!" announced another.

The commercial world has "got in its best lick" on St. Valentine's Day, just as it has with Christmas.

But we have no right to condemn the commercial world. It gives us what we want. And if our finer instincts were wounded by the idea of giving garters and suspenders and handkerchiefs and shoe-trees for valentines, we wouldn't do it, that's all!

I wonder if the modern valentine displays are only a true index of us humans today. If it merely means that we are ashamed and afraid and have no inclination to say "I love you" or be crassly sentimental any more?

One nowadays can hardly imagine the most lovestruck swain sending the lady of his choice a lace-foamy valentine which blantly said, "I love you, darling."

No, he will send her a violet and orchid or sweet pea and rose corsage, or a huge heart-shaped box of candy, and there will be no passionate note of tender avowal tucked within the flowers or the candy.

I am not altogether sure that "the good old way" was altogether best. Our ancestors were a bit silly, at times, and I am not sure that their marital records were any rosier or unclouded by storm and stress than those of today.

But still I wonder—couldn't we dare show sentiment a little more? Not with valentines necessarily so much as with a rebirth of demonstrated affection the year round, running like a colored ribbon through the pattern of all our days?

We don't write just chatty, talky letters any more because we have a friend who loves us. We're too busy.

We forget to send our mothers flowers and candy or a bit of lace for her soft old throat any time in the year just to say silently "I love you" to those whose days run perhaps too smoothly, too silently, in the twilight of their lives.

We don't cluster about the piano any more and sing the old love songs. We are too busy listening to the jazz on the radio below forth, "Where's My Sweetie Now, and Who?"

Let's try to be less ashamed of saying "I love you," less afraid of the old-fashioned sentiment that walked in gardens when the eve was cool!

Verily, the boys were not so slow when Cave Johnson was postmaster general.

— AND SO HAVE THE VALENTINES!

Ye Valentines of Yore Love Unadorned Bore

Meet the grandparents of the 1925 valentine!

Hand-colored sentimental missives of 1846, they are—out of the old haircloth-covered trunk in the attic, and, rid of the dust of 80 years, as fresh and new as when they carried heart-throbs from sweethearts to sweethearts in the days when James K. Polk was president of these United States of America.

Here's a young gentleman clad in a brown coat, lavender vest, light blue pantaloons, and wearing a red necktie. He's proffering a pink rose to a damsel of the period, garbed in a yellow dress with a white lace collar, and wearing pink roses in her hair.

In the background is a garden containing a light brown tree upon the branches of which perches a very red bird. The swain who sent this tender remembrance to his lady love used water colors unsparingly.

And here are the verses:

"The blushing rose that hangs its head,
Or meets the sun with shrinking dread,
Conceals within its heart a flame
Which from the glowing noontide came.
So have I loved, but some strange spell
Forbids my heart its tale to tell.
Here, take this simple rose, and feel
The love my lips dare not reveal."

Can the swain of 1926 beat this for concentrated affection?

But here's another:

A swain in a brown coat is courting a maiden in a pink dress and wine-colored wrap.
And here's what goes with the picture:

"My heart is thine, my Valentine;
My arms would round these fondly twine.
'Till, lost in love's impassioned kiss
My soul could know no greater bliss."

Verily, the boys were not so slow when Cave Johnson was postmaster general.

WHAT A WOMAN SEEKS

This is what a woman seeks:
One with laughter in his eyes.
Soft and gentle when he speaks,
Strong and brave and very wise;

One whose company is fair,
Free from petulance and whining;
One who with a happy air
Gossips with her when he's dining.

This is what a woman seeks:
One whose love for her will last
Longer than a few glad weeks,
And the first sharp, stinging blast.

One who'll never do her wrong,
Never shame the name she's taken,
One who, though the years be long,
Still will keep her faith unshaken.

This is what a woman seeks:
One who will not turn away
For another's painted cheeks,
But forever hers will stay,

One whose temper or despair
Never to his duty blinds him,
But a man like this is rare
And no woman ever finds him.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 8—SERGEANT COD AND HIS CODFISH SQUAD

"Now will the lady and gentleman please give the pass-word also," said the sergeant of the squad.

At last Jupe, the kind kangaroo, led the Twins to the gate of the castle where Blue Whiskers, the wizard, lived.

That is, he led them to the moat which ran at the foot of the gate. "Halt!" cried a large blue crab. "Give the password or I'll pinch you."

"Rice pudding!" said Jupe quickly.

"Pass then," said the crab. "Let down the drawbridge," he called to a lobster on the top of the wall.

The drawbridge came down and Jupe and the Twins passed over, and went in through a high gate made of sea shells.

Suddenly eight fat codfish with forks for guns, flopped up on their fins and demanded the password again.

"Eight rice puddings!" said Jupe. "Now will the lady and gentleman please give the password also," said the sergeant of the squad.

Instantly Nancy said, "Apple-dumplings!"

And Nick said, "Peanut brittle!" It was really too embarrassing! But the harder they tried to say "Rice pudding," the more their tongues became twisted.

"That won't do," said the sergeant. "If you don't say the password in two minutes we shall have to dump you into the moat. And the moat isn't water either. It is made of cod liver oil. And no one likes cod liver oil that we know of."

Here Jupe whispered into the sergeant's ear.

"Ay, ay, sir!" said the codfish backing away. "If that is the case we apologize. And when Sergeant Cod apologizes he does it right." So saying he reached into a box marked "bullets" and took out a handful of round objects which he divided between the Twins. "These are codfish balls, fried, boiled, and baked very hard," he said. "But they are magic as well. They will turn into bicycles or even, if necessary, into automobiles. If anything happens to you in the Land of the Blue Cherry, just say: 'Roly poly fish-balls.'"

"Get me out of these walls!" "And puff! You'll be out before you know it."

The Twins took the fish-balls and put them into their pockets. But when they tried to thank the kind codfish, Nancy could only say, "Tomato-soup!" And all Nick could stammer out was "Waffles and syrup!"

"I'm sure you're quite welcome," said Sergeant Cod stepping back into line and saluting. "It's too bad you didn't come in by the wicket gate. It would have saved so much trouble. Your heads, too, maybe."

"There goes that old wicket gate again!" thought Nancy. "I'm sick of hearing of it. If only we had heard a little more of it before we came, and a little less after, it would be better all around. But I do wish we could see that old fellow Blue Whiskers before long, so he could fix our tongues right. It's no good thinking things if you can't say them."

Nick was thinking, "I do wish we could find out about the Blue Cherry. We haven't seen a sign of it since we came and poor Twinkle Pie is probably writing over everything in the Fairy Queen's palace. We must find it as soon as possible, and cure him."

By this time they were inside of Blue Whiskers' palace and what a sight met their eyes!

PUNISH, THEN ERADICATE

At this time it looks as though quick justice is to be dealt the Tia Juana criminals who brought about the Petet tragedy at San Diego. After that, let there be no let-down until the iniquities of the border are wiped out.

No one who knows Tia Juana was surprised over the conditions exposed there as a result of the death of Mr. and Mrs. Petet and their daughters. For years, Tia Juana has harbored criminals. The roughness of the toughs gathered there from everywhere; the vilest of the vile have made it headquarters.

Congressman Phil D. Swing, four years ago, brought the attention of the State department at Washington to conditions along the border. At that time he advocated an agreement with Mexican authorities whereby gambling, the selling of liquor and the operations of other dens of vice would be prohibited anywhere on Mexican soil within fifty miles of the border. It was through Swing's efforts that curtailment of going and coming across the border was secured. The State department secured an agreement for the closing of the border at 9 o'clock. For having brought this action, Swing was attacked by interests wanting the border kept open. His stand in the matter became a campaign issue. The vote of the people for the Congressman in itself was an indication of the stand of the district upon this subject, as well as a pronounced endorsement of his stand on the Boulder dam, which, in fact, was the main issue of the campaign.

Tia Juana must go. Either the border must be closed against all visitors excepting those with passports, or all dens of iniquity must be shoved back into Mexico at least fifty miles, the further the better.

NO MORE SUBMARINES

There has been a strong demand since the war, voiced particularly in America and England, that the submarine be outlawed. Now Archibald Hurd, an English naval expert, emphasizes the demand, insisting that this type of craft "can never serve the purposes of civilization."

Heretofore, opposition has been based mainly on the nature of submarine warfare, which is essentially cowardly toward the enemy and which imposes great hardships and dangers on the crew. Mr. Hurd, as a naval strategist, brings against it the charge of inefficiency. In spite of Germany's tremendous effort, he points out, the U-boats absolutely failed in their purpose of blockading England and keeping troops, war materials and supplies from the western front. Means were found to foil them, though at considerable cost. It will always be so, he thinks.

If the submarine is not good for war, it cannot be much good for anything. It is hard to think of peaceful uses. An occasional submarine may be serviceable for exploring the sea bottom or raising sunken ships or doing work of some sort or another at the bottom of a harbor, but that is about all. Commercial carrying can be done better by surface craft. The world could well afford to sacrifice submarines altogether in order to eliminate them as sea assassins.

Aircraft are different. Great as may be their adaptability to warfare, there are greater services for them to perform in peace. They belong to a modern, peaceful civilization, and will serve the purpose all the better if they can be reserved for it, not by outlawing war planes but by making war unnecessary.

HOME COOKING BEST

French cooks are considered the best in the world, the French cooks are spread all over Europe. Yet Americans over there are not satisfied. Follow a party of our tourists, says a Paris correspondent, and this is what you hear:

"My kingdom for some corn bread!"

"Oh, for some real buckwheat cakes!"

"If I could only get some nice brown waffles, with Vermont maple syrup!"

"When a Frenchman can cook chicken in 990 different ways, why can't he fry it like we do at home?"

"The cook who learns how to make corn fritters in Paris will make his fortune."

Showing, of course, that there's no cooking like home cooking—when you're away from home. Foreigners talk the same way over here.

THE TOP JOB'S A JOB

The head of a big gas company recalls his first job. He was a barefooted farmer boy and the job was driving a herd of cattle six miles on a hot afternoon. His pay consisted of a piece of pie, a glass of milk and two cents. He says he has never forgotten how much that money meant to him.

Since that time he has held numerous other positions, among them being almost every possible job connected with a gas company, from scout and pipe fitter to president. And this is how he describes his present position at the top:

"It's not a dizzy height. The only difference is that there is a little more work to do, a great deal more responsibility, and an endless demand for tact. One must be more than ever considerate of the other fellow's feelings."

"A little more work to do and a great deal more responsibility" are probably very close to the truth about any big job. They make the job big. But they are far from the common conception of the attributes of the place at the top. A good many people who are stuck considerably farther down the ladder are inclined to imagine that achievement of the top means a life of ease and the cessation of all further effort.

SPEED WITH CULTURE

A New York University professor of philosophy believes that "speed" and "money" are killing culture. They have come to be "deadly values," things which the modern man imagines he prizes most. The danger is, according to the professor, that he may really come to prize them most, forgetting the true values of beauty and wisdom and character.

"The ideal of distant communication in the twinkling of an eye appeals to us as worth while," he says,

"even when the distant place or person may be of no importance. We revere radio, and have set up its million altars for no other reason than that we can listen to the most commonplace entertainment at the greatest distance."

"Another age would have hesitated to annihilate space and time the way we grind them up in our machines. They would have feared the envy of the gods."

There is much truth in what he says. There is danger of losing the real good obtainable through our modern machines in the thrill of the machines themselves. Civilization sometimes seems to need a breathing spell in which to rest from material things and to let the things of the spirit re-assert themselves.

Outlook Rosy for Dam

Imperial Valley Press

Advices from Washington all seem to indicate that the Swing-Johnson bill will be passed by congress during its present session.

The long deferred legislation on the Colorado river flood protection, reclamation and development program now is believed to be at hand. Passage of the measure will mark a great epoch in Imperial valley and be the fruition of work which has been energetically pressed for years by Congressman Phil D. Swing and Senator Hiram Johnson, and their supporters.

The Press already has reprinted editorials published in two of Washington's leading papers. Below it reproduces one from the Washington Daily News which echoes the opinion that the Boulder Dam project now seems assured.

"Construction of the huge reclamation, irrigation and power project at Boulder Dam has ceased to be a far-off dream. It has become a definite and immediate possibility."

"A year ago the administration was opposed to the project. Within the last two months this attitude has appeared to change. The Swing-Johnson bill has been approved with certain changes, by Secretary Work and Secretary Hoover. Representatives of states in the upper basin of the Colorado river are helping to frame a new provision of the bill which will give absolute protection to their water rights, and when this is done satisfactorily their opposition will be withdrawn."

"Arizona is still refusing to sign the Colorado River compact, but negotiations are now in progress among envoys of California, Nevada and Arizona for division of the Colorado's waters in the lower basin, and if these are successful there probably will be little opposition from that source."

"An attempt will be made by private interests to remove from the bill the clauses giving cities and towns a preference in leasing power privileges at the dam. The bill would be changed to provide that power shall be leased to the 'highest and best bidder.'"

"This modification will be vigorously opposed by friends of the Swing-Johnson bill who are anxious to assure the city and rural districts of the Southwest low power and light rates."

To Bring Tia Juana Clean-up

Pasadena Star-News

"Wide open" Tia Juana has reaped another harvest of tragedy. An American family of four has gone into eternity in shame over the ghastly outrage of two American girls in a den of infamy in the border town. Suicide took all four members of the family out of a Tia Juana resort and were there subjected to unspeakable indignities. So flagrant and so horrible was the offense, the American Department of State immediately took up the case and demanded summary action by the Mexican authorities. Governor Rodriguez, of Southern California, promises to act quickly and austerely. The mayor of Tia Juana also promises a moral cleansing. The chief of police of that town is one of those charged with perpetrating the horrible crime against the American girls.

It is high time that condition at Tia Juana be abated. That resort has a stench in the nostrils of decency for a long time. Many American girls have been lured to ruin there. The town is visited by great numbers of tourists and sightseers from the American side—also by many who are not just innocent sightseers—race-track gamblers and others whose motives are far from innocent.

It should be said that some American visitors are indiscreet. Some American women of respectability, once across the border, think it great fun to go "slumming" and, usually accompanied by American males, make the rounds of the resorts. No doubt this is misunderstood by some of the Mexicans connected with those places. They take these visits as being in approbation of their resorts and the way they are conducted. This no doubt emboldens them.

It is to be hoped that American authorities may insist that Mexican government officials clean up Tia Juana and keep it clean, so that Americans may visit there in safety.

Health Topics

By DR. HUGH CUNNING

European General, United States Health Service

WAR BY A NATION ON CONTAGION

The activities of the national government in the interest of public welfare are so manifold that the public has but a very small conception of the services of this nature rendered by federal agencies.

Among other activities of this character is that of the national quarantine system operated by the United States Public Health Service for the purpose of preventing the introduction of various diseases that, when once admitted, tend to become epidemic, such as plague, cholera and yellow fever.

The Public Health Service operates approximately one hundred stations in the United States and in insular territories, and it also has on duty at the American consulates, in foreign countries, many officers engaged in supplementing the sanitary safeguards in force at the quarantine stations, by preventing the embarkation of diseased persons at foreign ports of departure.

Modern ship quarantine methods differ greatly, however, from those that were formerly in vogue. For many centuries commerce by ships on the high seas or by overland caravans had unrestricted movements.

Gradually people began to perceive that incoming travelers and cargoes from infected territories were responsible in some way for the introduction of pestilences. Not infrequently a complete embargo was established against infected cities and countries. This was a method well exemplified by the shotgun quarantine employed in the south against the spread of yellow fever some 20 or 30 years ago.

The latter part of the nineteenth century was notable as the era of promiscuous disinfection, fumigation and destruction by fire of articles thought to be infected. Ships were washed down with disinfecting solution even to the stowage in the ballast and travelers from infected ports were very apt to be given chemical baths and were held in quarantine detention for many days.

But as science revealed the mysteries and demonstrated the manner in which contagious diseases are disseminated, a great change followed. Preventive methods, not only simpler, but much more efficient, were adopted.

Youth Speaks for Itself

Kansas City Star.

The letter sent to The Star by students of the Manual Training high school is encouraging for two reasons. In the first place, it indicates that these young people are jealous of their reputations; they would not have the impression prevail that conditions relative to the conduct of students and of boys and girls of the city generally are as bad as some have painted them, certainly not as bad as one might be led to believe by the letter from a young girl published in The Star last Sunday.

This is a wholesome condition. Many young persons regard it the smart and popular thing to break over the lines and to indulge in irregularities. Some no doubt, would seek to gain a reputation for smartness by greatly exaggerating accounts of their conduct and experiences. But these particular high school students do not want that kind of notoriety. They would prefer to be thought of as decent, properly behaved young persons. And they have a right to claim such consideration.

But, further, the position of the students is heartening because of the influence it may have among the young people themselves. The standards of conduct among any group or class of persons are determined to a considerable degree by members of that group or class. If sane, outstanding young people make it clear that they do not regard improper conduct as smart, clever, a sign of energy and spirit that cannot be held within bounds, then much of the lure of waywardness and irregularity will be destroyed. If reports of young people, overdrawn as they may be, serve to awaken the young people themselves to a new sense of their responsibilities and to a just pride in a good name they will not be futile or merely the source of a temporary sensation.

Worth While Verse

FOR ANY LADY'S BIRTHDAY

Spring's silver poplars stand apart,
Most ladylike of trees,
And mortal ladies should take heart
From gentleness like these.

They watch the blue days pass along,
They see the nights go by,
But keep forever morning's song
And nighttime's starry sky.

They know the maiden spring goes soon,
But their wise hearts are still,
For they have seen the quiet moon
Above a wooded hill.

The poplars wear in halo-guise
Their silver crown of years—
And if all ladies were as wise
There would be fewer tears.

—Lawrence Lee in Harper's Magazine.

Time To Smile

GUILTY

"Last night I made an awful mistake."
"That so? How?"
"I drank two bottles of gold paint."
"How do you feel?"
"Guilty."

TIME TO CLOSE

"How's business going?"
"Like clockwork."
"Why, I heard you had failed."
"So I have. They've just wound up the business."

Little Benny's Note Book

by Lee Page

Pop was smoking and thinking and maw was wailing around the room pushing straws things crooked and crooked things straws, saying, My goodness look at the muddy footprints all over the floor like a mermaid mystery or something.

Land sakes, Benny, my cant you learn to wipe your feet outside of the house like a normal person instead of inside like a I don't know what? I believe that boy actually takes reel pleasure in seeing how much he can track into the house, she said.

Nonsens, he's just a regular der tracking boy the same as I was at his age and I'm glad he's not one of those mollycoddlers that go around wiping their feet all day long like a flock of little angels, pop said. When I was his age that's just the way I used to be, always getting into some mischief or other and I wouldn't want a boy that was any other way, he said.

Well you haven't got one, bleve me for land sakes, ma said.

Me thinking, G, this is a good time to tell pop about his fountain pen and his watch. And I said, Hey pop, do you know your red fountain pen?

Intimately, pop said, and I said, Well, I was practicing drawing with it today to improve my drawing and I must of accidentally pressed down too hard and the point bent over, but I straightened it agen, only I think it don't write exactly the same.

O well, boys will be boys and it wont cost a fortune to have it fixed, I suppose, but for Peet sakes leave it alone in the future, pop said, and I said, Yes sir, and pop, do you know your thin watch?

Your not going to tell me you did anything to that, are you? pop said, and I said, I don't know for sure, but it dropped wile I was counting my pulps by it.

The rest being too bad to tell and proving if you have too much bad news theres no such a thing as a good time to tell it.

14 Years Ago Today
From the Register Files

FEBRUARY 13, 1912.

The birthday of Abraham Lincoln was observed in all of Santa Ana's public schools yesterday.

A representative of a Los Angeles newspaper was in Santa Ana lining up entrants in a grammar school athletic meet, which will be held soon in Santa Ana, under the paper's auspices.

Mrs. Mit Phillips was hostess at a 1 o'clock luncheon given in her home.

The Santa Ana high school track team defeated the Long Beach high school track team, 79 to 52.

County Clerk W. B. Williams received a statement from W. A. Gates of the state board of charities and corrections approving the plans of the board of supervisors for improving the county jail.

Judge Crowe of Santa Barbara arrived in Santa Ana, where he will occupy the superior bench for a week, while Justice Z. B. West will sit on the superior bench in Santa Barbara.

ON THE SIDE LINES

A Record of Individual and Independent Opinion.

(Which may or may not be in harmony with the views of the Register.)

THIRCE BLESSED LODI!—According to a newspaper which is an ardent supporter of municipal ownership, Lodi, in this state, is a very lucky place. Says the publication in question:

"The little city of Lodi is the best lighted in California. Its thoroughfares are illuminated by 553 electrolers, or one electroler to each group of 14 residences. The big thing is that the illumination of Lodi's streets is absolutely free. The only cost to the residents is the original purchase of the electrolers, the city of San Bernardino county where, it is found that 46 per cent of all the prisoners convicted in the San Bernardino county superior courts in 1924 and 1925 were either paroled prisoners or recidivists—having served one or more terms in prison before."

One is not informed as to just how the scheme for furnishing electric light "free" to those 553 electrolers works out, or anything of that sort; but on the face of it, it would really seem that some one in some way, has to pay for that "free" electricity.

One might hazard the guess that the tax payers pay for it, for the records show that the total tax rate of the city of Lodi has increased during the last five years 88 per cent.

TRY, TRY AGAIN—E. G. Lewis, promoter of cities, banks, public libraries, women's clubs, houses, or what have you, has been discharged by the court in bankruptcy, and thus obligations aggregating $10,000,000 have been removed from his shoulders.

Mr. Lewis is a comparatively young man, and with the wonderful facility for getting into debt that he has shown, he can, and no doubt will, commence all over again.

KANSAS PLAN INTERESTS

US—A former bank commissioner of Kansas is on trial on the charge of conspiring with former Governor J. M. Davis, of that state, to sell a pardon.

The trial will probably bring out some interesting facts as to how pardons are marketed in Kansas, whether they are sold at public auction or by means of a plan something similar to that used by Southern California citrus fruit growers in disposing of their fruit.

If Kansas has any better plan for disposing of its extra pardons than that in use in California for the sale of fruit, we really ought to know what it is.

ALL ARE DOING IT—Since the development and utilization of the waters of the Colorado river have come into such prominence, one notices more profanely in the newspapers of the southwest than ever before.

Yes, a dam site more. Nor does it end here. Almost every community in the country is organizing parties to go to the proposed scene of action and learn how it is proposed to dam the Colorado.

"THAT REMINDS US"—Thomson as M. Gannon, one of the members of the board of prison managers—who, by the way, has recently been reappointed—very courteously remarks that anyone who does not believe in California's "indeterminate sentence" and parole law is either ignorant or untruthful "and is generally both."

Reminds one of the incident in connection with the menu furnished to Mike Cassidy's boarders. It consisted largely of hash, and there was much complaint.

Indians Came From China

Science Service.

New light has been thrown on the ancestry of the American Indian by Dr. Edward Sapir, noted Canadian anthropologist, now on the faculty of the University of Chicago. Dr. Sapir says that his research work on Indian linguistics has convinced him of the identity of the language of certain Indian tribes with that of the primitive Chinese.

The similarity of the two tongues and the linguistic distribution of tribes scattered at random over the Americas have convinced Dr. Sapir that these groups must have entered this continent as a wedge from Asia. By a close comparison of the primitive Chinese, Siamese, and Tibetan, all in the same language category, with the languages of the "Nadine group" of North America, Dr. Sapir has found the same peculiarities of phonetics, vocabulary and grammatical structure on both sides of the Pacific ocean. The American Indians, speaking the language of the Nadine group, are found in all parts of the North American continent, from northern Mexico to the southern boundary of Alaska, widely distributed among other Indian tribes whose language and customs are entirely different. With minor changes, he asserted, the Navajo language of New Mexico speaks the language of the Sarcee in Alberta, and the linguistic stock of the Tlingit, just south of the Eskimos in Alaska, is much the same as that of the Hupa in California. It is probable, according to Dr. Sapir, that the migration of the Asiatics speaking primitive Chinese or Tibetan took place some time in the past, and that these immigrants settled or moved over the mountains and plains, some remaining in North-western Canada to become the Tlingits, and others moving out to the Queen Charlotte Islands off the among the boarders because of the all too frequent serving of hash.

Determined to end this, Mike addressed the boarders, when the next meal was served, in the following language:

"I want to say that anyone who doesn't like hash is a liar, and I can prove it."

HOW IT WORKS OUT—Mr. Gannon's sweeping statement regarding those who fail to favor our present indeterminate sentence and parole law, may be set up alongside of the experience of San Bernardino county where, it is found that 46 per cent of all the prisoners convicted in the San Bernardino county superior courts in 1924 and 1925 were either paroled prisoners or recidivists—having served one or more terms in prison before.

DIDN'T HELP SAMSON—Presumably as an argument in favor of bobbed hair, the statement is made that the women of Carthage (not Carthage, Missouri) had their hair bobbed and then furiously fought in defence of their city against Scipio Africanus.

On the other hand, there is high authority for believing that Samson's ability as a fighter was entirely destroyed when he had his hair bobbed.

STATES A GREAT TRUTH—

Here is an old legend which conveys a great truth, albeit it may not be quoted absolutely correctly: There is so much good in the worst of us, That is why it becomes any of us, To talk about the rest of us.

NEVER FAILING CROP—To the ordinary observer it would appear that a great furor was raised as to who should have the honor of escorting the alleged swindler Frank back to Los Angeles from Chicago, where he was arrested.

From appearances it would seem that the Los Angeles supply of Franks is always equal to the demand.

IN DEAR OLD NEW YORK—

Yes, there are certain phases of life which we who live in Southern California, and not in dear old New York city, miss.

For example, when the blizzard with attendant snow storm which visited the big city at the first of the present month cleared off, the New York city board of estimate voted to expend the sum of $2,200,000 for cleaning the streets.

WILL NEED IT—One of Pasadena's newspapers points with pride to the fact that, at a recent meeting of the Pasadena city directors, the following words were used—correctly, of course,—by members of the board: ratiocination—reasoning, on the mental process of exact thinking; loquacious—chattering or garrulous; sycophant—false accuser, tale bearer, slanderer, deceiver, parasite; senile—characteristic of old age, or the infirmities of old age.

Evidently the man who attends a meeting of the Pasadena city directors would do well to take a Webster's unabridged along.
